MOON EXPLORERS BACK ON EARTH

ABOARD NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Apollo 14 explorers splashed down in the South Pacific today; ending a nine-day voyage of discovery that scientists say will vastly enrich man's knowledge of the moon.

Alan B. Shepard, Edgar D. Mitchell and Stuart A. Roosa hit the water after a blazing re-entry through the earth's atmosphere.

During the re-entry, which started when the command ship Kitty Hawk slammed into the atmosphere at 24,596 miles an hour, the temperature on the protective heat shield reached more than 5,000 degrees.

19,000 Drop In Jobs—NDP

By PETER McNELLY

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett said Monday the government's projected 25,000 new jobs before October, 1971, represents a 19,000 decrease from the number of jobs created in 1969.

Calling this a "dynamic decrease," Barrett proposed an immediate campaign to bring the head offices of manufacturing companies to the province.

Barrett led the debate on Friday's budget speech and told the legislature: "We get this hot air in the budget about how they're going to create jobs."

Then, referring to Premier Bennett's statement that 'J-O-B-S' is the keynote of the budget, Barrett said, "I've got another four-letter word that might describe it, B-U-L-L.

'WINDING DOWN'

"The economy is winding down, and you're bragging about it," he shouted across the floor.

The government is bragging, he said, after its own civil service hiring freeze forced some people to go on welfare last year. And he accused Industrial Development Minister Waldo Skillings of doing almost nothing to bring manufacturing industries to British Columbia.

He charged that although 1,977 new manufacturing industries began in B.C. during 1967-69—"about average"—only five manufacturing companies related to the petroleum industry and only 24 related to the primary metals industries were established since 1960.

Barrett claimed these 29 companies produced only 48 new jobs. He said he was going to meet today at 10 a.m. with an executive of the Toyota automobile company to discuss what kind of

We'd Tax Less, Says Grit Chief

By BRUCE YEMEN

Provincial government spending $100 million higher than Premier Bennett's $1.3 billion budget for 1971-72—but without Bennett's increase in taxes—was proposed in the legislature Monday by Liberal Leader Pat McGeer.

Among McGeer's $1.4 billion in spending proposals were programs to create jobs, protect the environment and to aid the elderly, the poor and Indians.

The Liberal leader said he could spend $100 million more than Bennett and still have a balanced budget with no increases in cigarette, gasoline or hotel taxes in the next fiscal year which begins April 1.

It was the third annual Liberal budget proposed by McGeer.

He said Bennett's practice of underestimating revenues and then siphoning off the bulk of the resulting surpluses into B.C. Hydro bonds is costing the province dearly.

By not following the advice contained in the Liberal budget last year, the premier had cost B.C. 46,000 jobs which would have reduced unemployment from 76,000 to 30,000 and cut 70,000 or 80,000 persons off welfare, McGeer said.

To emphasize his point, McGeer allocated $30 million less for the welfare department than Bennett did for the next fiscal year—$106 million instead of $136 million.

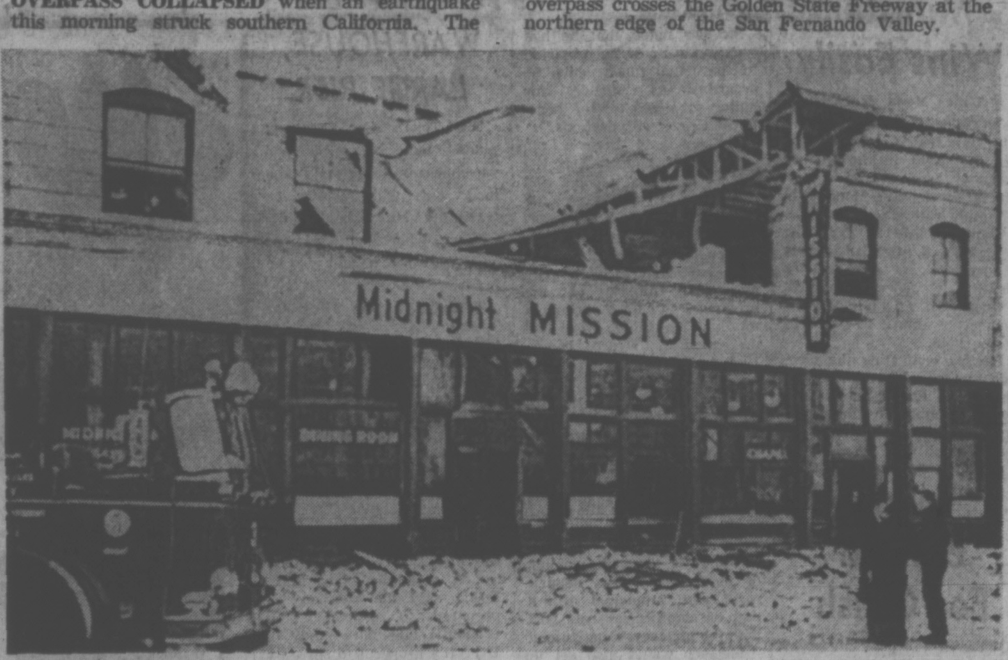
OVERPASS COLLAPSED when an earthquake this morning struck southern California. The overpass crosses the Golden State Freeway at the northern edge of the San Fernando Valley.



FIRST VICTIM in the earthquake which hit southern California this morning was found under the rubble of the partially destroyed Midnight Mission in Los Angeles. (AP Wirephoto.)

Hospital Collapses

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A powerful earthquake jolted southern California at dawn today, causing at least 12 deaths, scores of injuries and heavy damage to buildings, highways, bridges and other facilities.

Authorities said many persons were unaccounted for at a Veterans Administration Hospital facility in the San Fernando Valley where seven bodies were found.

Others were reported killed at Olive View Sanitarium a mile away.

The shock was centred in the rugged San Gabriel Mountains 26 miles northwest of Los Angeles. The San Fernando Valley is the closest major population centre. Hard hit, too, were the towns of Newhall and Saugus, just 10 miles from the centre.

The shock at 6:01 a.m. PST (9:01 a.m. EST), followed by numerous aftershocks, created cracks in the earth-fill dam creating the Van Norman Lake reservoir, largest in the city system with 6.7 billion gallons of water. Residents were ordered evacuated from the area of the San Fernando Valley Lake after "some leakage" was reported.

60 PERSONS TRAPPED

At the Veterans Administration Hospital, in suburban Sylmar, firemen said a roof collapse trapped a reported 60 persons.

"The extent of injuries we don't know at this time," said Keith Kroll of the fire department. "The rest of the patients have been evacuated."

Reuters quoted a fireman as saying: "We have a catastrophe here. We have about 2½ acres of buildings that have collapsed."

City and county schools were closed so damage could be appraised. So were several downtown buildings. Lockheed Aircraft, hit recently by financial woes, closed two plants pending safety inspection of buildings and cleanup of broken glass.

SCENES OF CONFUSION

There were scenes of wild confusion as the quake, accompanied by an ominous rumbling sound and violent rolling that lasted nearly a minute, struck as dawn was breaking.

Power lines snapped and transformers showered sparks, plunging many areas into darkness. Phone service was knocked out in many areas. Gas mains snapped, with a rash of fires. Water mains parted. Power poles toppled.

Many large apartment buildings were evacuated with

BUT NOT A QUIVER IN THE HOMES

Wild Scrawl on City Graph

By STEVE HUME

The heavy shocks of the Los Angeles earthquake rocked the sensitive seismic equipment at the Victoria Geophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountan at 6:01 a.m., but nobody else in the city felt even a quiver.

Dr. William Milne, federal government seismologist, pulled out a graph and pointed to the wild scrawl where the seismograph had recorded the earthquake.

He estimated the shocks at about 6.5 Richter magnitude, healthy by anybody's standards, but said they could have been as low as 6.1, "depending on how your measure."

Milne said there was no danger that a major shock like the one felt in California could trigger other smaller earthquakes in distant areas.

"They just don't trigger other earthquakes," he said, "except maybe in an immediate proximity."

Vancouver Island lies in the extremely active Pacific Rim that records much of the world's earthquake and volcanic activity, said the seismologist.

"The past couple of weeks have been very active," he said, "but it's not cyclical. It comes and it goes but apparently not in cycles."

He said the Los Angeles quake was quite a strong one by seimological standrads.

"Anytime you get an earthquake that reads over six you can be sure you're going to get some damage," he said.

"There would probably be no danger to high-rises, for example, but a concrete block construction might collapse."

Some people, said Milne, are under the incorrect impression that the entire Pacific coastal region of North America is a single gigantic fault system.

There are some pretty big faults, like the San Andreas fault, but none of them come anywhere near the size attributed by contemporary folklore.

"The San Andreas fault system runs up through California," Milne said, "but it cuts sharply out to sea along an escarpment at Cape Mendocino in northern California."

He said the San Andreas fault line passes under San Francisco and was responsible for the earthquake that flattened the city in 1906.

A fault also runs under the northeastern sector of Los Angeles, he said.

"There is, however, no active fault running under Victoria."

"The nearest fault to the city, he said, is the Leech River fault. It

HAND FROM THE DEEP RETURNS MESS

TORONTO (CP) — Two ice fishermen may never litter again when they tread out on Lake Simcoe.

The two received the shock of their lives last weekend as they sat drinking beer and dropping their empties down their ice hole.

A ghostly black hand suddenly emerged from the hole and deposited an empty beer bottle and some other litter on the floor of their fishing hut.

The hand belonged to one of four young Toronto divers who were swimming beneath the ice looking for a lost snowmobile when they came across a mass of litter on the bed of the lake.

Quebec Ties Welfare Move To Formula

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's political leaders went back behind closed doors today, apparently in agreement on the wording of a formula that would permit constitutional changes within Canada, but still unsure whether the formula itself would be accepted.

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa is asking that agreement on a formula be accompanied by acceptance of his proposals for increased jurisdiction over welfare services in his province.

Mr. Bourassa said before the opening of the second day of the conference that there has been substantial progress on working out a formula for amending Canada's constitution, which still must be done via Britain's Parliament, by Canada itself. But there was no definitive and complete agreement.

He was asked whether tentative agreement could be reached today and the formula discussed back in Quebec.

"No," replied Mr. Bourassa. "I would say that the government agreed—the Quebec government agreed—that very important progress has been made . . . but we want to study certain implications before committing ourselves."

In any case, the formula would have to be discussed in Parliament and various provincial legislatures before receiving the final seal of approval.

CNTU Occupied

MONTREAL (CP) — A crowd of about 100 former employees of the G. Lapalme Inc., mail pickup service marched into and occupied the downtown offices of the Confederation of National Trade Unions today.

residents reported in near panic.

Experts said the shock was not the "great quake" that some have said will occur some day on the San Andreas, California's major fault, which traverses the state north-south. One seismologist placed the centre "very close" to the San Gabriel fault, part of a network of earth fractures in the San Andreas system, and said there's a "strong suspicion" it was to blame. The San Gabriel fault caused a severe earthquake in 1893.

First reported death was in an ancient brick building in downtown Los Angeles' skid road area, the Midnight Mission, where the roof fell in.

Another person died at Olive Vew Sanitarium in the Sylmar area of the San Fernando Valley, where part of the structure collapsed.

EXTENDS 250 MILES

Shock waves were felt over the 350 miles between Fresno and the Mexican border and inland as far as Las Vegas, Nev.

Closest towns are Newhall and Saugus, about 10 miles from the epicentre, where much damage in the form of broken windows and cracked walls was reported.

Downtown Los Angeles and communities in the San Fernando Valley, where the population is 1.3 million, were hard hit.

The shock came as a series of violent jolts, followed by a rocking motion lasting nearly a minute.

Buildings swayed and cracked. Windows shattered. Highways cracked and buckled. One major freeway was closed. Merchandise in stores and household objects on tables and shelves tumbled to floors. Power and phone service was interrupted in many areas, with transformers and high-voltage lines snapping.

In a few locations, walls of old buildings fell out or roofs sagged.

Police Seek William Head Escaper

Colwood RCMP are looking for a 20-year-old prisoner who walked away from the William Head minimum security prison early this monring.

A spokesman said Harry Roy Cook was serving a five-year sentence for breaking, entering and theft. The offences occurred in Ontario. He was due to be released in 1973.

The man is described as about 140 pounds and of slim build.

He has tattooes on the back of one hand, his forearms and shoulder. He also has a scar on his chin and the palm of one hand.

IRA Mine Kills Five

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Five men, two of them British Broadcasting Corp. engineers, died today when their Land Rover triggered a mine apparently planted by terrorists, British military officials said.

They said the vehicle was blown to bits by the explosion near Brougher Mountain, 70 miles west of Belfast and only about 10 miles from the borders of the Irish Republic.

The blast came after six days of guerrilla fighting pitting British troops called in to keep peace against militant forces of the outlawed Irisih Republican Army.

Use of land mines has begun only recently in the Northern Irish conflict between the Protestant majority and the Roman Catholic minority.

Hydro Financing Set for Debate

A full-scale legislative debate is shaping up for Wednesday on the issue of secrecy surrounding the financial operations of B.C. Hydro, the Pacific Great Eastern Railway and the Liquor Control Board.

Formal notice of a motion to "regret" that the accounts of the two crown corporations and one agency are not available to members of the legislature and to the public accounts committee has been filed by Dennis Cocke (NDP—New Westminster).

The motion will also ask the house to direct that the accounts of the organizations be made available.

The accounts of the Workmen's Compensation Board are also called for in the motion, which takes the form of a traditional non-confidence motion.

Tanker Work Stays in U.S.

The federal industry, trade and commerce department has shot down a municipal suggestion made last year that expanded facilities at the Esquimalt Graving Dock would be able to handle repairs to tankers carrying oil to Valdez.

The rejection was revealed Monday night when Oak Bay council received a letter from J. C. Rutledge, general director of the aerospace, marine and rail branch.

"This market . . . is not available to Canada as United States law requires that such oil be carried in U.S. bottoms and that these be serviced only in U.S. shipyards," his letter said.

Two new drydocks for these tankers have recently been provided at San Francisco and others are in the planning stage at Seattle and Los Angeles."

Substitute Teachers Back on Job

LAKE COWICHAN — Substitute teachers here have returned to work after a month-long dispute over wages.

They agreed Monday to join the Lake Cowichan Teachers' Association by Sept. 20. The association will negotiate for them with the Lake Cowichan school board next year.

The school district is paying $19 a day for uncertified substitute teachers, $22 for elementary certified and $28 for degree certified, either par or above surrounding school districts. But the substitutes were asking $30.25 for elementary certified and $37 for degree certified.

'Open Door' Policy Urged

DUNCAN — Too much business is done behind "closed doors" and the public is not kept aware, Ald. Martin Lukaitis said Monday.

Lukaitis said the city's procedure bylaw should be reviewed because council spends hours in committee meetings without results.

"Many issues are not understood because in public most recommendations come out as motions with no discussions."

Need Urgent For Scriptures

The urgency of providing Christian scriptures to the people of the world was stressed at the 98th annual rally Monday night of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Bible Society at Metropolitan United Church.

Rev. Ray Tingley of Vancouver, district secretary of the Bible Society, told of record increases in scripture distribution last year with 252,500 copies circulated in 42 languages in British Columbia and nearly 2,000,000 in more than 70 languages throughout Canada.

He said there has been a rediscovery of the relevance of the Bible, an increasing awareness of spiritual hunger and the new versions and formats into which the Bible Society is putting the scriptures.

Log Debris Study For Committee

The legislative committee on forestry will be asked to study the question of log debris in the Strait of Georgia and to recommend control measures.

Resources Minister Ray Williston filed notice of motion to set the committee to work on the subject and also to study the "contractor clause" in tree farm licences.

Shadow Mischief

. . . LIBERAL 'BUDGET'

The Liberal leader admitted his record as a forecaster of government revenues isn't perfect, but it is a lot better than Bennett's, he said.

By the end of the current fiscal year Bennett will have underestimated revenues by about $390 million in the past three years, or about $130 million a year, McGeer said, while his own record would be off by $28.6 million a year.

McGeer said his prediction last year that the current year's revenues would be $1.4 billion (Bennett predicted $1.166 billion) would be "far off the mark" but he blamed provincial government "mismanagement" for the shortfall.

Nonetheless, McGeer said, his projected expenditures for the current year of $1.317 billion ($1.165 for Bennett) would prove to be "almost" balanced by $1.301 billion in revenue in the current year which ends March 31.

LISTS ITEMS

As for next year's $1.4 billion Liberal budget, McGeer said the spending highlights would include:

● Free bus passes good for all hours for persons 71 and over and a "home-retention grant" for the same age-group in the form of delayed property taxes which would be paid when succession duties were levied.

● A program of chronic-care homes modelled on the Alberta government program for citizens no longer able to care for themselves.

● Day-care centres for children of working mothers and single-parent families, a guaranteed annual income based on rebates of the provincial share of the income tax and a $25 grant to all tenants who are not sending children to school, the grant serving to ease the discrimination against tenants who don't benefit from the $170 annual homeowner grant.

● A North American Indian Festival for B.C. in 1971 with at least $175,000 in prizes for the best art exhibits to stimulate industry.

● Free tuition for reserve Indians who can qualify at any institution in Canada.

● A department of environmental control with a $10 million budget.

● A thermal electric generating unit using beach wood waste and natural gas, possibly located near Victoria.

● Removal of the 5 per cent sales tax on building materials for construction during the six winter months and provision of a $50 million centennial fund for municipal projects.

● An industrial development budget of $20 million for formation of an economic council, construction of a "science city" for research and provision of incentives to new industry.

Other features of McGeer's budget compared with Bennett's budget include $40 million extra for the education department for the provision of facilities and $30 million extra for the health department for new hospitals, child psychiatric facilities, chronic-care homes and medical research.

The attorney-general's department would get $3 million extra for a proper legal aid program, an ombudsman and a victims of crime assistance fund.

DEVICES

McGeer noted that he has once again made no provision for perpetual funds which he described as "devices for hiding surpluses for the benefit of Crown corporations."

McGeer said that if the government wants to fight the effects of drugs, alcohol and cigarettes it should provide the money out of estimates rather than tying up $25 million in a perpetual fund.

He said that as of a year ago $951 million of the provincial trust accounts totalling $1.5 billion were tied up in B.C. Hydro bonds. Hydro should seek financing on the open market, McGeer said, adding that the Crown corporation must also be made accountable to the legislature.

Among other proposals of McGeer's budget repeated from last year are the firing of the three women ministers without portfolio at a saving of $50,000 a year, the joining of the public works department with municipal affairs and of commercial transport with the highways department.

McGeer would also set up an independent auditor-general for the government at a cost of $50,000.

Labor Minister Wins Easily

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer won his first seat in the Quebec national assembly in a provincial byelection Monday in Chambly riding.

For the Liberal party he represents it provided a show of support for its policies since taking power last April.

Unofficial results gave Cournoyer almost 66 per cent of the vote.

Parties contesting the election were: Liberals, Parti Quebecois, Credit Social Uni, Parti Republicain Independend, Parti Quebecois and an independent.

Many Blamed For Crash

OTTAWA (CP) — The report of the inquiry into the air crash near Toronto last July that took 109 lives assesses blame for the crash on the two pilots of the DC-8, the plane's manufacturer, Air Canada and the federal transport department.

The report, prepared by Mr. Justice Hugh Gibson of the Exchequer Court of Canada, said the crash would not have happened had Captain Peter Hamilton, pilot of the plane, followed the procedures laid down in the Air Canada operating manual for arming the ground spoilers which slow and steady the aircraft after it touches ground.

The first officer, Donald Rowland, contributed to the crash by activating the spoilers when the aircraft was 60 feet above ground at Toronto International Airport, the report said. The report was tabled in the Commons today.

conditions a New Democratic government would ask should Toyota set up a car assembly plant in B.C.

Barrett then sarcastically offered to make an appointment for Skillings with the

TOYOTA FIRM

"There was really nothing new in that budget. All that was new was the taxes, and in my opinion, one of them was completely frivolous."

Outside the legislature, Barrett said he was referring to the cigarette tax which "doesn't fit into an overall pattern."

'NERVE CENTRE'

If the government were acting aggressively to recruit manufacturing industries. It would tell people British Columbia is going to become the "nerve centre of the Pacific Rim countries," he told the house.

Barrett accused Socred backbenchers from northern B.C. of failing to speak up for their constituents, the small businessmen and pioneers who are seeing their lands controlled more and more by multi-national corporations."

He brought up an argument he had last week with Resources Minister Ray Williston over who controls logging rights in forest land near Houston.

Barrett said he has been unable to get a firm statement from the minister on whether Bulkley Valley Forest Industries Ltd. controls 98 per cent of the sawlog rights in the area.

As Barrett spoke, Socred members repeatedly called on him to "get your facts right," and Williston rose to tell Speaker William Murray ha had not said Barrett was a liar on this point.

Williston said Barrett had been wrong to say that the Bulkley Valley company is making large profits in the area.

Barrett agreed the company is not yet making money on land development in the area, but he quoted a report from Skillings' department that Bulkley Valley Forest Industries does control 98 per cent of the sawlog rights in the area.

"I'm talking about the flaw in the system that allows a large company with headquarters in New York and London to control a small empire in British Columbia," he said.

HIDDEN TAXES

The hidden taxes in this year's budget speech, Barrett said, are the 10 per cent increase in automobile insurance rates and the proposed B.C. Telephone rate increases.

Barrett said the B.C. Tel increases would be granted with the aid of the public utilities commission. But Attorney-General Leslie Peterson corrected Barrett, saying that the PUC has no jurisdiction over B.C. Tel rates.

It's a federal matter, Peterson said.

"Then stand up and say that if those rates go up, that you're prepared to put the B.C. Tel under public ownership," Barrett challenged the cabinet.

Cambodia Drive Meets Opposition

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese armored column drove across the Ho Chi Minh trail in southern Laos today, sweeping up sizable ammunition caches left by retreating North Vietnamese.

While the push into Laos met only light ground resistance and harassing shelling attacks, a parallel drive by 20,000 South Vietnamese troops in Cambodia ran into stiff opposition.

North Vietnamese troops launched three heavy attacks on the edge of the rubber plantation town of Snuol, five miles inside Cambodia and about 90 miles north of Saigon.

On the Laotian front 300 miles to the north, a South Vietnamese field commander said he expected his troops during the next 10 days to push along Route 9 as far as they could toward Savannakhet, 125 miles across the Laotian panhandle on the border between Laos and Thailand. He did not say just how far his troops would try to go, however.

MEET LIGHT CONTACT

The lead South Vietnamese units were reported 12 miles inside Laos, meeting light contact with the North Vietnamese as they advanced toward the town of Sepone, 25 miles from the border. Sepone is a main North Vietnamese trans-shipment point and base area, but the town was said to be virtually deserted.

Twenty thousand South Vietnamese troops are taking part in the operation, along with 9,000 U.S. troops who are remaining on the Vietnamese side of the border as a blocking force.

TOYOTA PLANS WAREHOUSE, LARGE PIER

The Toyota Car Company plans to build a large pier and warehouse on the lower mainland but will require a feasibility study before deciding whether a car assembly plant should also be built.

T. Fujita, liaison officer for Toyota Motor Sales Co., announced the pier and warehouse plans today after meeting for almost two hours with Opposition Leader Dave Barrett.

He said the pier and warehouse, for which a site is being sought, would handle up to 2,500 units a month from Japan.

The meeting resulted from a letter written to Toyota by Barrett proposing the firm set up an assembly plant here. Fujita said the company is prepared to undertake an economic feasibility study of Barrett's proposal to set up a plant which would employ B.C. residents.

"It is a very quiet fault," he said.

The most active fault in the area runs through San Juan and Orcas Islands in the Strait of Georgia.

There are other active faults farther north, in the Strait of Georgia near Comox and in the vicinity of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

It was a fault north of Comox that triggered a heavy shock in 1946. That earthquake registered 7.3 Richter magnitude and toppled Victoria chimneys in the Fairfield area.

And a Queen Charlotte Islands fault set off the tremors that shook Victoria Friday morning, with a reading of between 6.5 and 7 Richter magnitude

"Most of our stuff, however, comes from further west off our coast," Milne said.

Central May Adopt Elective Curriculum

Greater Victoria school trustees got a glimpse Monday of what a totally elective junior high school curriculum would be like when they discussed planned changes for Central Junior Secondary.

Trustees at an education committee meeting received a brief from the staff, students and parents involved with Central that outlined a program designed on a quarterly structure in which arbitrary grade restrictions would be removed.

Completion of junior high school would be based on finishing 96 quarter courses over a three-year period. Each quarter would be roughly 10 weeks.

The program is to start in September if the school board and the department of education approve.

Trustees will decide at next week's board meeting.

IMPRESSED

Trustee Victor Rogers said he was particularly impressed with the submissions of the student planning committee which pointed out that it would like to see speed reading, creative writing and philosophy as courses.

Central principal William Garner told trustees the student ideas were the result of a questionnaire circulated throughout the school. There are about 900 students.

He said later this week departments within the school will submit reports on what courses may be offered with the available teachers.

'SHADOW ENROLMENT'

From these reports, he said, a "shadow enrolment" will be devised to decide what courses are to be given in the first-quarter program in September.

Education committee chairman Walter Donald asked Garner how a student would register in and select a quarter program.

Garner explained that it would be the result of a discussion between the student, parents and an adviser working with a handbook of courses being offered.

"We are also going into the elementary schools," he said.

Parents with youngsters in Grade 7 and entering Central next September have been involved in the planning of the program, Garner noted.

AFTER 78 COURSES

He said the figure of 96 quarter-courses was an arbitrary one and it was conceivable that some students would go on to high school after 78 courses and others after 102 courses.

Permission for the planning of the curreula change was given by the school board last year.

A parent advisory group has been involved in the planning since last September and in January, six students and seven teachers from Central went to Roosevelt Junior High in Eugene, Ore., on exchange to study a similar program already in operation.

In other business, Dr. Selwyn Miller, executive director of the Educational Research Institute of British Columbia, addressed trustees on the objectives and organizationn of the institute.

He said the ERIBC was designed to encourage educational research and to offer funds to projects that show some promise of educational benefit.

Professional assistance and guidance, he said, in proper research techniques was also the institute's job.

Distribution of project findings was another area of ERIBC concern, Miller noted.

He explained that the institute's staff consists of a full-time secretary and himself, working in a part-time capacity.

A board of directors decides on the projects to be supported and the institute operates on grants from the British Columbia School Trustees' Association voted at its annual convention.

Oak Bay Backs Yacht Club In Building Breakwater

In spite of Mayor Frances Elford's opposition, Oak Bay council Monday night agreed to support the Royal Victoria Yacht Club's plans to build a 600-foot timber pile breakwater in Cadboro Bay.

The mayor said she was concerned that the yacht club might have to relocate but she was "not happy" about the breakwater hiding householders' views.

She described the proposed breakwater as "a very sad addition to our waterfront."

Ald. Douglas Watts moved the motion to support the yacht club, saying that although the breakwater would not be "a thing of beauty" he felt the council wanted the yacht club to remain in its present location.

Ald. Shirley Dowell, a past-president of the club's ladies' association, said she had not been approached by any member.

Watts, Ald. Norman Pimlott, Ald. Dowell and Ald. Brian Smith voted to support the club's proposal. Voting against were the mayor, Ald. Alan Hoey and Ald. John Goult.

BAY LOST TO PUBLIC

Municipal administrator E. H. Hart said that due to "lax zoning" many years ago Spoon Bay, close to Loon Bay where the club had been refused earlier to put extra mooring, had been lost to public use.

He suggested the municipality "expropriate" some beachland at the end of Lansdowne in order to make the bay again available for the public.

In other business Mayor Elford pointed out to council the need for guest houses in Oak Bay, even though this might have to be achieved through spot zoning.

She emphasized there are probably only three old homes suitable. She said licences are not transferrable and so provided a good safeguard.

Oak Bay has three times the national average of residents over the age of 65.

LITTLE RELIEF

Commenting on the provincial budget, Mrs. Elford said it offered little relief to municipalities.

She said that although the homeowner's grant had been increased it would not compensate for the increase in education costs.

After Ald. Smith remarked that the Greater Victoria school board should live up to its promises on Camosum College and that even members of the student body appeared to be opposed to lowering the fees from $250 to $200, council voted to support what Ald. Hoey dubbed the "Commotion College's" budget.

Council approved the budget of the Oak Bay Recreation Commission in principle and referred to the estimates committee.

Several residents objected to council's decision to barricade part of Eastdowne when snow was on the ground so that children could use it as a sled and toboggan run. Others turned out to support council's decision.

The council referred the matter back to the streets and traffic committee.

Gaglardi Attacked

A scathing attack on Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi came from Dave Barrett, leader of the Opposition New Democratic Party, in the legislature Monday.

"As far as I am concerned you have been nothing but a big bag of wind as minister of welfare or rehabilitation or whatever you call yourself," he called to Gaglardi.

Barrett withdrew the term "bag of wind" but went on to call the minister a "failure," a "zero" and a "blank."

Gaglardi just smiled as the NDP leader went on to say his department had made no progress at all.

His smile stayed in place as Barrett suggested that if he wants to get the deadbeats off welfare he should set about clearing up the cabinet.

"There are more deadbeats in that cabinet than on welfare," Barrett said.

Remand Given

VANCOUVER (CP) — Anton Paul, commissioner of marriages in the Fraser Valley community of Abbotsford, was remanded without plea to Feb. 16 when the appeared in provincial court here Monday charged with conspiracy to violate the Immigration Act.

In the conspiracy, it is alleged, Canadian-born women—and in some cases paid to marry East Indian men so the men could obtain landed immigrant status in Canada. The marriages later ended in divorce or annulment.

ADVISORY BOARD TAKES SHAPE

Advice Only on Rent Problems

Without defining exactly how, a steering committee formed by Ald. Robert Baird of Victoria decided Monday to begin providing advice about rental accommodation problems.

The eight-member committee agreed to meet again in two weeks and receive mail in the meantime with a view to discovering the nature of complaints from tenants and landlords anywhere in Greater Victoria.

One thing the committee will not do at this stage, Baird said, is get involved in legal questions of any kind. A rental grievance board with legal powers may be formed at some future date if warranted.

FIVE MEMBERS

The committee also agreed that its final form will be a five-member board, with representation from both landlords and tenants, with the following title: Rental Accommodation Advisory Board.

Mailed inquiries will be received through the city clerk at Victoria city hall.

Committee member John Woods said the greatest part of the problem is in getting information to people with complaints. About 95 per cent of all complaints could be answered quickly by a person with a good knowledge of provincial landlord and tenant legislation, he said.

Larry Ryan told the committee the most important factor will be grievances, and any board should have the appearance of a "state of parity" between landlords and tenants.

The greatest problem, members decided, will be avoiding legal entanglement during the stage that the board is merely an information-seeking and dispensing body.

Better Business Bureau manager Bill Tindall said 5 per cent of rental accommodation complaints are about rent increases.

Baird added that the provincial government receives a large number of requests for help or information, suggesting the need for some kind of advisory board exists.

Although views varied as to whether a bylaw should be requested from the city, forming a board with mediation powers, the committee decided to see what happens while forming the five-member board and listening to suggestions from tenants and landlords.

4,955,000 STAMPS FROM GOAL

DELTA JUNCTION, Alaska (UPI) — This town of 5,000 residents is only 4,955,000 Betty Crocker coupons away from a much-needed new engine for the volunteer fire department, city fathers say.

So far, residents of Delta Junction, which is about 100 miles southeast of Fairbanks, have collected 45,000 of the stamps.

Officials say 5 million will be needed to purchase the new rig.

Remedies and Cures

IT IS A USUAL PRACTICE FOR Premier Bennett to use the speech from the throne and the annual budget speech as vehicles for criticism of federal government policies. His sparring with Ottawa is so constant that he cannot resist employing any major public pronouncement for a further jibe at the government's conduct of national affairs. Last week's budget speech was no exception, and Mr. Bennett took occasion to criticize "high interest rates, tight money, and deficit federal government financing" along with the "threat of increased unemployment."

More particularly, Mr. Bennett objected to Ottawa's handling of costs arising from the influx of people from other parts of Canada who seek the Pacific Coast as a more comfortable place in which to weather unemployment—a point of some substance. For good measure Mr. Bennett included as an appendix his lengthy submission to the federal-provincial conference of September, 1970.

In regard to the more-or-less temporary migrants from other parts of Canada, Mr. Bennett rightly sees "a responsibility to the new British Columbia citizens," even though "we have no control over the movement of these people," and he urges intensive industrial development of the province as the only way in which this rapidly escalating population can be sustained.

That, of course, is an almost universal problem these days, although British Columbia with its natural and physical advantages is particularly subject to population growth. The corollary to the necessary development in this province, according to Mr. Bennett's thesis, is fewer federal demands on British Columbia's revenue sources, more federal assistance in the form of grants and loans.

One of the obstacles which this theory of aid-to-the-affluent runs into is the federal government's need to assist the less favored parts of Canada. It is not good that this nation should have permanently depressed areas — "Appalachian" islands in a sea of relative prosperity. This problem Ottawa has sought to solve through grants-in-aid to certain areas, development incentives, particular attention to make-work projects, and programs to establish industries where these are lacking, or conversely, to remove unemployed workers to more productive regions.

Mr. Bennett stresses the opposite facet in his concept of federal policy. The truth, he holds, is that "growth in the economically dynamic regions of Canada is essential to generate the wealth necessary to assist the slower economic-growth areas." And along with this principle he calls for the guaranteed annual income.

As an overall economic and social solution to stability of maintenance for the population as a whole, the guaranteed annual income is being looked at by most political parties and many countries today. Undoubtedly some form of it will become the eventual answer to individual insecurity, although the toll in national costs, in burdens on production and in psychological effects on the human beings who will benefit, are still very much unknown factors.

Such considerations apart, Mr. Bennett's concept of prosperous areas of the country being built up to maximum productivity in order to provide apparently permanent assistance to less endowed areas whose residents will be supplied with a guaranteed income, contains a fallacy. This approach seems to condemn such residents to an enduring form of second-class citizenship from which it would be very difficult to break free.

Surely the correct approach is to rehabilitate people rather than regions, and this would require the establishment of industry or commercial enterprises where these are feasible, or else the removal of wage-earners to places where they can function to provide their own livelihoods.

What permanent states of unemployment the computer-automation age may impose on mankind have yet to be determined. But until that new era arrives for mankind the objective should be maximum participation in the nation's productive processes by all Canadians who are physically and mentally capable, rather than a lopsided economy of permanent givers and permanent receivers.

End of a Diplomatic Pretence

SENATOR EDMUND MUSKIE'S remark, that the current South Vietnamese incursion into Laos "torpedoes the myth of Laotian neutrality," is an even sadder commentary than it appears to be. The statement and the official U.S. policy to which it refers provide implicit recognition of the fact that a Laotian-type political settlement for South Vietnam does not have official support in Washington.

Far from hastening the end of the war in Vietnam, the demise of Laotian neutrality or rather, the end of theoretical Laotian neutrality, (since the use of the Ho Chi Minh trail by the Communists has long contributed to its erosion), sees the probable end of a very useful model which could have been used in South Vietnam. Laos had a neutralist-led coalition government.

Referring to the Geneva accords on Laos in 1962 (to which the United States was a signatory) President Kennedy said that they were "a heartening indication that difficult ... international problems can in fact be solved by patient diplomacy." The accords were specifically designed to prevent the Laotian civil war from becoming an international conflict.

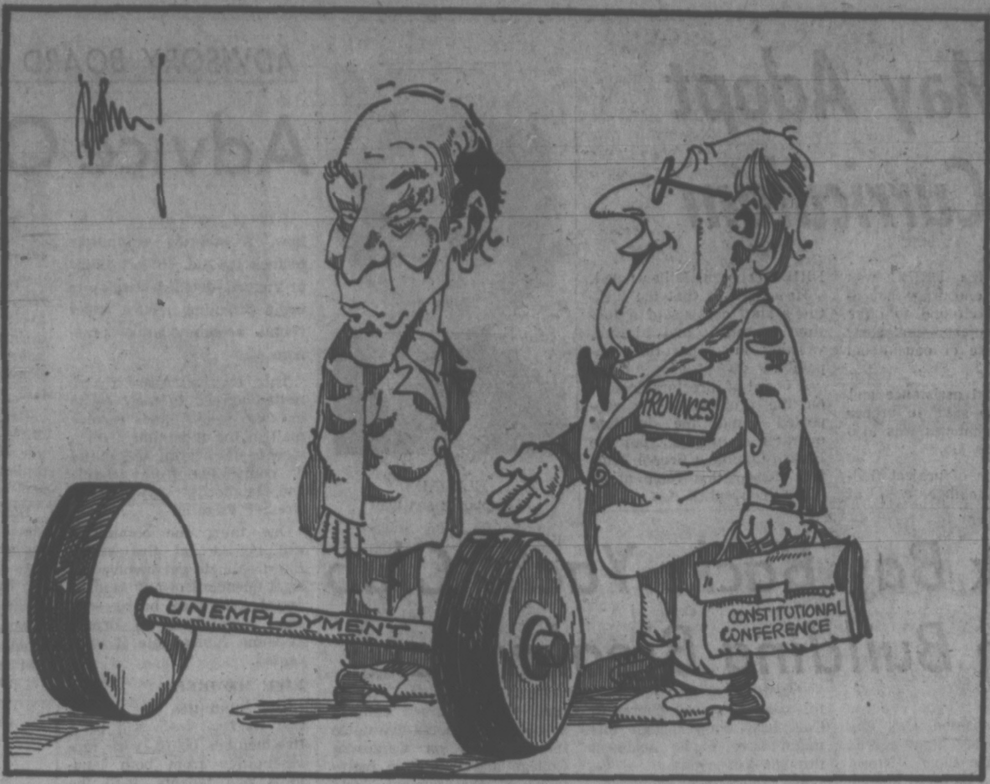
It does not seem likely that even the Democrats under, say, an administration headed by Sen. Muskie, could resurrect the Laotian prototype. Indeed, events to come may see the abrogation of Laotian neutrality by other powers besides the South and North Vietnamese as the internal situation in that unfortunate little kingdom becomes more unstable and the different Laotian factions resume battle positions and turn to external allies for more help.

No Credit to Anybody

FOR BOTH VICTORIA'S hockey fans and non-fans, Saturday night's brawling display of poor sportsmanship at the Memorial Arena was far below the standard of conduct that this city finds acceptable.

Regardless of the background tensions induced by management decisions on Victoria Cougars' internal arrangements, and of rough tactics on the ice, particularly by the Vernon visitors, there was no excuse for the degrading spectacle put on by a number of people in the stands, both verbally and in action.

That sort of conduct may attract some spectators in the hopes of seeing excitement and perhaps blood, but it will turn away a great many Victorians who still regard hockey as a sport, and players as sportsmen.



". . . oh, we're not going to lift it . . . we'll be talking about it . . ."

Monument To Inefficiency

New York Times

Pyramidal is the word for the fiscal irresponsibility symbolized by the South Mall in Albany, Governor Rockefeller's extravaganza of five blocks of state buildings, underground arcades, lagoons, museums, a library and amphitheatre.

Five years ago the governor's grandiose proposal for "the most beautiful capital city in America" was set forth at an estimated cost of $250 million. The latest estimate is that the Mall will be completed in 1974, four years behind schedule and at a total cost of $850 million, or more than three times the original figure. Controller Arthur Levitt, who from the outset opposed this marbled phantasmagoria of the governor that pleases nobody but the contractors and the labor unions, appears closer to the mark in predicting the ultimate bill of $1 billion plus $500 million in interest charges.

How can the prospect of added demands on taxpayers be squared with the fact that this stone Gargantua is about to swallow up another $85 million (with perhaps $65 million more to follow), not as a result of inflation but to recompense contractors for claims arising from poor planning? Such costs are reflections not of architectural beauty but of inefficiency or avarice or both.

FROM WASHINGTON

By JAMES RESTON

Rising Mistrust in an Endless War

THE main issue in the latest Allied offensive in Indochina is not the "news blackout" on military operations, but the policy question of why the South Vietnamese, with a million men under arms and an air force of over 600 planes, are still relying on massive U.S. air support to break up enemy troop concentrations and supplies. The objective of scattering the Hanoi units and cutting their supply routes is clear enough. President Nixon's nightmare has always been that a smaller and smaller American expeditionary force would become more and more vulnerable to attack by any large and well-armed Communist force.

Reston

Accordingly, it is not hard to reconcile the strategy of withdrawal with the strategy of preventive strikes in Cambodia and Laos. It is a little harder to explain why the American people have to be told about the Allied buildup by the Communists, whom the news blackout is supposed to fool, but why so much U.S. air power?

The experts at the Pentagon have been saying that South Vietnamese pilots and maintenance men now compare favorably with their American counterparts, that North Vietnam has about 91 MiG-17s and 19s, and that these planes do not add up to much of an air threat in South Vietnam.

The Pentagon experts also say that the South Vietnamese have become quite proficient in flying transport, tactical reconnaissance, and close air-support missions, and that their 32 squadrons and 600 planes will be almost doubled by the summer of 1973 and supplemented by three squadrons of fighters by 1974 or 1975.

'Getting Out?'

A little less of a news blackout on this timetable for the Saigon air force would be helpful, for if a million-man army and a 600-plane air force is not enough to deal with the threat from the North, is the American Air Force to keep on blasting that wretched peninsula until the Saigon air force is ready in 1974 or 1975? Is this what is meant by "getting out?"

The war has not been a major political issue in the last few months because the casualties have dropped, a timetable for withdrawal seemed to have been set, and everybody has been assured that the South Vietnamese were taking over responsibility for the war even faster than anticipated, but if the American war effort is to go on into the middle seventies, maybe the whole question of withdrawal should be explored again.

It is true that the administration has recently decided to speed up the training and equipping of the Saigon air force. In 1966, the Johnson administration decided to build a 20-squadron force for the South Vietnamese. In 1968, this target was moved to 40 squadrons, not yet complete, but as Deputy Secretary of Defence David Packard recently told William Beecher of The New York Times, Saigon will not be completely self-sufficient in both offensive and defensive air power until the new International fighter, now in an advanced stage of development, is in full production and even then, he said, we may have to stick around in Thailand or somewhere else.

What these Pentagon projections and calculations about timetables and self-sufficiency never seem to take into account, however, is that whatever we put into Saigon to make it self-sufficient, the Russians and Chinese can match and challenge Saigon's self-sufficiency. This is a game both sides could play for decades.

The recent flap over the six-day news blackout in Saigon and Washington is only the latest indication of the element of mistrust that still poisons all discussions of the war in this capital. No Senator would ask for public information that might produce American casualties in the movements along the Laotian border, but Senators have been misled so many times in the last five years about what the administration said it was doing in Vietnam that many of them now simply do not believe what they are told.

Contradictions

One day they are assured of the spectacular success of the Cambodia invasion, but before long they are told U.S. air power will be used anywhere in Cambodia or Laos against any force that might "ultimately" attack our troops. One day they are assured that no American troops are in Cambodia and the next some are found in civilian clothes at the Cambodian capital airport.

So again there is a rising debate about when the U.S. really is "getting out," when the Saigon regime will be self-sufficient, if ever, what role the U.S. Air Force is expected to play in the future and what the rest of us are supposed to believe meanwhile.

Correspondence From Our Readers

Fixing Catches

May I suggest that, for the time being, a per-vessel "maximum production clause" would seem most fair and just for the large majority of fishermen and should establish the desired equilibrium in our industry. Also, it will not add to our present unpleasant unemployment situation.

Seemingly, the majority of fishermen would prefer that the increased licence fee money be used for salmon rehabilitation, rather than for a "buy-back scheme" towards reducing the salmon fleet.—Knud V. Larsen, 426 Luxton.

Nitinat Triangle

I am writing of my opposition and concern over the recent proposal by the Sierra Club to include designated lands, the Nitinat Triangle, in a wilderness area.

The proposal would perpetuate a single-purpose use of the Nitinat area, for the enjoyment of a limited few hardy and rugged people who would be able to afford a boat trip to the area, or enough time off (approximately eight-10 days) to hike into it. This would account for considerably less than 1 per cent of our provincial population. The proposal would hamper flexibility of management on public lands by career professionals and thus would represent a major blow at the whole multiple use concept of land-use management.

"The freezing" or "lock up' of these public lands would not only curtail management flexibility by provincial authorities, but may, eventually, gravitate against the best interests of wilderness itself. This is evidenced by the deterioration of mature forests, as has been the case in the Cook Forest of Pennsylvannia, the Kilmer Memorial Forest in the Adirondacks, and others. Designating areas as wilderness could very well be providing our future generations with the grief of stagnant and deteriorated forests which are of very little value—aesthetic or otherwise.

These deteriorated forests are not able to meet the food demands of game population, nor are they able to provide adequate natural regeneration. Such conditions could be harmful to adjacent managed lands due to uncontrolled outbreaks of insect infestations, disease epidemics, or even fire.

Inclusion of these lands in a wilderness system would endanger the jobs of 200-plus people. Have we, the people, the right to remove their subsistence when wilderness areas could be established elsewhere with fewer detrimental effects? The provincial government would also lose considerable revenue from stumpage, property, and corporate income taxes. Hence economics is to be considered also .

More credit should be given to the Forest Industries, for they now realize that "quality" not "quantity" through intensive management, is the key to providing a renewable resource for generations to come. It is no longer the rape of the forest but a tried and true science.

I am not questioning the idea of "wilderness" itself, but the question is "how wild" and "what will our future generations inherit if we include the Nitinat-triangle?"

Is compromise and time the answer?

In closing, I would like to quote from an essay of George Perkins Marsh, in 1864:

"Man has too long forgotten that the earth was given him for usufruct alone, not for consumption, still less for profligate waste — Let us be wise in time!"

Have we the foresight to consider all variables and still find an answer? — Brian Zak, Vancouver, B.C.

"Martlet" Service

There seems to have been a great deal of criticism against the university newspaper the "Martlet" for having stirred up a controversy regarding the university president. "Yellow journalism" seems to be the term most often sued.

But is there a newspaper anywhere that doesn't, on occasion, show a bias or resort to sensationalism? This does not mean we should do away with our press. I don't believe the Martlet has printed anything that has not been substantiated. The editors have done a service to the university and community by pointing up the defects of a system that permits excellent professors to be released by a president of rather unorthodox qualifications, in spite of department recommendations to the contrary.

As a concerned parent and a part-time student I sincerely hope that something constructive will come out of this controversy.—Mrs. Audrey Fawcett, 57 Wellington.

For Angela Davis

I support the petition to free Angela Davis. I do not know her personally. I do know, by reputation, a number of the people who are trying to make their voices heard in her behalf. They are from among those who consistently espouse peace and who oppose all forms of the violence which threatens to engulf the world and erase humanity.

Miss Davis is black; she possesses a keen intellect; she is a woman; she is outspoken in her political views (which are not in accord with those of the ruling hierarchy). These qualities taken together and in the embattled climate of present-day America, place her in extreme jeopardy. Television lets everyone casually view instances of U.S.A. courtroom "justice." We have seen, as it happened, accused and witnesses being eliminated before they could come to trial or give evidence. Can anyone believe it could not happen again?

The petition states that justice is indivisible and in peril everywhere today, even in Canada. In fact we have been hearing so much about law and order and so little about law and justice that one wonders if justice has become a dirty word.

Have we forgotten then that it is better that the guilty escape punishment than that one innocent person stand wrongly condemned? Contrary to the tenor of your recent editorial, I think that justice is what the petition in question is all about.—Dorcas Blair, 450 Dallas.

Other Voices

To clear up a misunderstanding resulting from publicity given to the current circulation of a petition in behalf of Angela Davis, black American teacher and leader now under serious criminal charges in her country: We would like to state that while several Voice of Women members are among those concerned, the Canadian campaign is the combined effort of members of a number of organizations and does not necessarily represent the total membership of any.

The campaign is motivated by our rising concern over the appalling political bias in many of the courts in North America, and by our conviction that the nature and technique of the charges laid upon Angela Davis conspicuously demonstrate the power of a state to go into action against the life of an individual holding independent political views.

The facts are available in abundance through the Readers' Guide to Periodical Literature, as well as through United Campaign, 4350 43rd Street, Los Angeles, Calif. 90008. — Canadian Campaign, Mary Scott Cox, 4267 Gordon Head Road.

Could Be Improved

I am writing in regards to the article on Mental Health by Bob Hunter in the paper February 4. I am a psychiatric nurse who trained at Riverview some time ago. Not having worked there for some time I cannot honestly dispute the lack of staff and over-abundance of patients waiting for admission, but I would like to say the picture along with the article could at least be a little more up to date and is quite likely to leave a false impression on the public. It is at least 10 years old, as I am very familiar with the nurse as a classmate of mine. I have the same picture in my album which makes me wonder if his facts are as dated as his pictures?—A psychiatric nurse who is proud of her profession.

Looking Back

From the Times of Feb. 9, 1911:

Ottawa — British Columbia lumbermen are to withdraw practically all opposition to the reciprocity agreement with the United States, according to a statement made by John Hendry, vice-president of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association. Mr. Hendry is also vice-president of the Canadian Forestry Association. He said that while he thought Canadians ought to have been able to induce Americans to let Canadian shingles in free he felt that the reduction of the duty was a distinct gain.

Papa Doc passing mantle to son Jean Claude

Black Power, Duvalier Style

By CHARLES VANHECKE
Le Monde

Haitian President Francois Duvalier last month officially designated his son Jean-Claude to succeed him.

In a televised address he wished his successor good luck, commending him to "all the great patriots and my old comrades-in-arms" whom he urged "to form an impenetrable shield around my son."

The Haitians will soon be called upon to ratify a constitutional amendment allowing this hereditary succession.

"Papa Doc's" decision to turn the Republic of Haiti into a dynastic regime may be one of the last of his political career.

It was through a bit of constitutional hocus-pocus that he succeeded in making the move.

The only thing known about the heir apparent is that he is a twenty-year-old first-year law student who owns six cars.

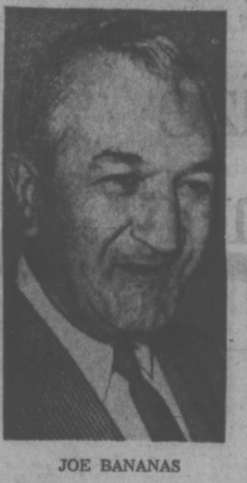
This may not be the best qualification for running a country, but his father can be counted on to provide him with many more when the time comes.

After all, does not Mr. Duvalier, who in 1964 named himself president for life, describe himself variously as Protector of the People, Supreme Commander of the Revolution, Apostle of National Unity, Leader of the Third World, Grand Patron of Commerce and Industry, Benefactor of the Poor, Electrifier of Souls and Redeemer of Errors committed by the Haitians?

Apart from natural disasters and underdevelopment, Papa Doc's personal action has contributed to swelling the ranks of the poor, whom he provides with a rather odd kind of "protection."

His national security volunteer force, better known as the "Tontons Macoutes," literally plunder the country. If they are not collecting their own taxes from the peasants, thus doubling the official levy, they go around taking land away from peasants, thus condemning them to starvation.

The Tontons Macoutes are President Duvalier's praetorian guard. In Haitian creole they are also called oncles-aux-sacs (bogeymen), and their female counterparts go by the name of fillettes-lalo (law girls).



JOE BANANAS

Their uniforms are as oddly assorted as the arms they carry: helmets, sombreros and Boy Scout hats, rifles and machetes.

Fanatically convinced that Papa Doc is a "zombi" (an immortal), they symbolize "black power" as conceived by President Duvalier.

The Tontons Macoutes (estimates of their number vary from 6,000 to 30,000) deal ruthlessly and summarily with any stirrings of rebellion among Haiti's five million citizens against their enlightened leader.

At Port-au-Prince, in the west of the island, they are led by a woman who studied the humanities in Parisian lycees, and who buys her clothes and perfumes from the most fashionable houses in Paris.

Rumor has it that when Mrs. Max Adolphe timidly opens her handbag and takes out a gilt-framed Louis Seize mirror, it is sometimes possible to catch a glimpse of a dinky little revolver.

Mrs. Adolphe, who is a deputy and the wife of the public health minister, has been named supreme oncle-aux-sacs by Papa Doc.

The revolver she carries about with her in society is a mere plaything compared with the machine gun she readily brandishes when, dressed in parachutist uniform, she marches through the streets with her troops in their chauffeurs' uniforms, or launches punitive expeditions, which she is said to enjoy immensely.

In its September 12, 1970, edition, the Spanish-language magazine Criba claimed that Papa Doc and his collaborators were secretly transferring up to $1.5 million a month to Swiss and American banks, that is, a half of the national income.

The magazine also gave some idea of the kind of fighters who were recruited to defend the "Duvalierist revolution" against the commandos sent by the CIA: American mafiosi such as Joe (Bananas) Bonnano and men like Max Intrattor, one-time boss of former Cuban dictator Fulgensio Batista's gaming houses.

It is common knowledge that the CIA has tried several times to have President Duvalier ousted. Washington has long considered his dictatorship was too murderous and "irrational" to further its interests.

But at 63 years of age, Papa Doc, although a sick man, remains firmly entrenched in his Port-au Prince presidential palace, where he readily receives visitors with the Bible in his hand and peppers his speech with quotes from Ho Chi Minh and Mustapha Kemal.

The United States finally resigned itself to the inevitable, resuming its long-suspended economic aid. The Americans will now have to get used to the idea of another Duvalier taking over the "transcendental" powers of his father, and with whom they will have to deal.

Venus 'Ghastly Inferno'

By WALTER SULLIVAN

Perhaps no man will ever stand on the surface of Venus, for its conditions are properly described as hellish. But if he does so, enveloped in a space suit or capsule with extraordinary insulating properties, it could be an extraordinary experience.

This was confirmed last week by the announced results of the first observations made on its surface — indeed, the first made on any planet other than the earth. The Soviet capsule, Venera 7, sent data for some 23 minutes after landing there Dec. 15.

The results indicate an atmospheric pressure about 90 times that on the earth's surface. The temperature was some 887 degrees Fahrenheit, even though this was on the "night" side of Venus.

Such an atmosphere, formed of almost pure carbon dioxide, would be so dense that it would bend, or refract, light rays to a marked degree. On earth refraction enables us to see the sun longer, after sunset, than would be possible if there were no atmosphere, but the effect is slight.

●

On Venus the refraction must be so great that, if the lower atmosphere is clear and sunlight can penetrate the clouds, one should be able, in principle, to see the entire planet from any point on its surface.

If one's vision were powerful enough, one could see the back of one's head, no matter in which direction one looked. At midnight, if the sun were visible on the day side of the planet, it would be visible from the night side as a rim of light around the entire horizon.

●

More realistically, the effect would be like that of standing at the bottom of a huge bowl with the land rising on all sides to a blurred, extremely distant "horizon."

While there are now serious doubts that sunlight can penetrate to the surface, the latter is itself so hot that it must emit a powerful infa-red glow, some of which may be visible to the human eye.

It is ironic that the "Queen of the Night," the brilliantly white planet named for the goddess of love and beauty, should prove to be a ghastly inferno beneath its universal cloud cover.

The earliest discovery, as to the true nature of Venus, was made by Galileo when he became the first to gaze at the planet through a telescope. "The mother of love," he wrote, "emulates the shapes of Cynthia (the moon)."

●

The reason is that Venus orbits the sun inside the orbit of the earth. As it passes closest to our planet, less and less of the earth-facing side of Venus is illuminated by sunlight until a crescent no wider than a fingernail paring remains. Before it overtakes the earth, Venus appears as the "evening star." Afterwards it is visible after sunrise.

It was observation of the phases of Venus that provided the first proof that the planets circle the sun and not the earth. Because Venus is a twin of the earth in size, is not much nearer the sun than we are, and is cloud-covered, it was suspected until 15 years ago that Venus might be a tropical paradise, lush with exotic vegetation and teeming with strange creatures.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is at a loss to explain why Venus is so hot. "No satisfactory explanation for this high surface temperature has been proposed," it said in a 1966 report to Congress. However, far more knowledge has arisen from the Soviet and American space probes of the past four years.

The 1966 NASA report suggested that life might exist in high, mountainous areas of Venus where temperatures, it was then thought, might be milder. Subsequently it was proposed that small organisms might be adrift in the atmosphere, held at temperate levels by tiny, hydrogen-filled bladders.

●

It has even been suggested that, while life may not exist there, it could be introduced. The organisms would go to work converting the carbon dioxide into living matter and ultimately into sediment until finally the entire atmosphere was altered and the planet made habitable.

The Venera capsules have found very little water vapor as they traversed the lower atmosphere, so unless the clouds contain much water (which many doubt), the prospects for life or colonization seem poor.

HIGHER PUBLIC INTEREST

The GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

Five Vietnamese have been refused permission by Immigration Minister Otto Lang to enter Canada. They are South Vietnamese who support the Viet Cong — that is, are opposed to the present South Vietnamese government and its United States allies.

Mr. Lang says that the five fall into the class of prohibited persons, who would normally be ineligible for entry visas and may come into Canada only with the minister's permission.

The intention of the five was to address an audience in Detroit via a closed-circuit television link from Windsor.

What was the regulation which automatically placed the five Vietnamese in the prohibited class?

When Mr. Lang recently denied entry to Abbie Hoffman, the U.S. Yippie leader, the class of prohibited persons into which he fell was clear. Hoffman has been convicted of a crime in the United States and is awaiting appeal.

Canada normally excludes persons who have been convicted of crimes and only the minister can make an exception and admit them. Mr. Lang declined to make an exception for Hoffman, a decision with which we agree.

But what brought the five Vietnamese to Mr. Lang's attention at all? Are all Vietnamese prohibited persons?

Surely not; Canada cannot properly exclude anybody on a basis of race.

Are they prohibited as partisans in the Vietnamese conflict? But this is not a war in which Canada is involved on either side; indeed, Canada's position on the international joint committee asserts that Canada is impartial in the situation.

★

If we are going to forbid entry to partisans in the Vietnam conflict, we must bar all partisans from both sides; and we do not.

Mr. Lang suggested that it was "not in the public interest" to admit the five. But how could they have threatened the public interest?

They were not proposing to break any Canadian law—thousands of broadcasts are produced in Canada to be heard and seen in the United States. They were not preaching sedition. They were not likely to provoke a riot.

Mr. Lang added that it was "not normal to reveal the grounds for such rulings." But that leaves Mr. Lang's grounds open to speculation.

We think we know what the grounds were, and we do not like them. We think Mr. Lang did not admit the five Vietnamese because he knew that the U.S. government would not like him to admit them, because they would have opposed the U.S. role in Vietnam — which is also opposed by a great many American citizens and a great many Canadian citizens.

Mr. Lang, in fact, acted as an extension of the U.S. Government, as a U.S. censor; and that is very depressing. Freedom of expression is too much under attack already, on issues that truly concern the interests of Canadians.

That we permit it to be attacked on behalf of a foreign government over an issue on which Canadians are divided merely demonstrates how slightly freedom of expression now concerns our governors.

'Values Must Be Changed'

By ANTHONY LEWIS

President Nixon hardly expects support from the young and radical critics of American life. One nevertheless senses disappointment in his Administration that those who want change in our society have not given him more credit or even attention for the turn he took in his State of the Union Address.

For the President there not only pledged himself to new programs against the American social evils of poverty, sickness and pollution. He faced the political alienation identified by the critics, people's feeling that they are in the grip of distant and impersonal forces.

Why, then, did the Nixon program seemingly fall short of touching the emotional chord it sought?

Political memories may be part of it. However much they want to believe that this is the real Nixon, people find it hard to forget that he is the president who nominated G. Harold Carswell to the Supreme Court and loosed Spiro Agnew on the voters.

But one can accept the sincerity of the State of the Union program entirely, and accept its objectives, and still find it arousing no real response, no faith in the "revolution" it promises.

The trouble is that it is a revolution of externals Nixon promises. The ideas for government reorganization may be worthy, the promise of reform and social spending admirable, but none of it gets at the real problem: the values in our society. It is the values that have to change.

★ ★ ★

To take an example at hand, Ralph Nader was interviewed the other day by Eileen Shanahan of The New York Times. He proposed a number of changes in law to make corporations and their officers more responsive to human desires and more responsible for the consequences of their acts.

For instance, he suggested that when an oil company violates drilling safety rules and pours oil into the Gulf of Mexico, its executives should be suspended from their jobs.

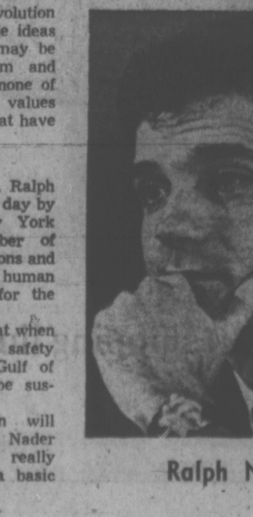
Now any sensible person will recognize at once that the Nader program in its own field is really "revolutionary," it strikes at a basic tenet of corporate life, that only money matters. It seeks to break the monolithic immunity and power of the corporation. And Ralph Nader is a highly practical fellow, not a visionary.

★ ★ ★

Consider the appalling social discontent fostered by the extremes of poverty and wealth in the United States. Nixon's welfare reform proposal is undoubtedly a worthwhile attempt to ameliorate some of the cruelest and most degrading aspects of the present system. But it is only that — reform, amelioration — and it does no good to pretend that it gets at the root of the evil.

Anyone who wanted seriously to get at the gulf between rich and poor in America would make radical changes in the federal tax system, because that system so overwhelmingly favors the rich.

Special treatment of capital gains, mineral depletion, entertainment allowances: none of them helps the wage-earner. A real reformer would eliminate all deductions, taxing gross income.



Ralph Nader

Utopian? Probably so, given history. A president does have to deal with the political reality of desperate mayors overwhelmed by welfare rolls at the same time that he protects his oil millionaire backers. But there are so many good things about America — the love of freedom and justice and experiment — that it should be possible to tackle the bad.

Nixon could easily demonstrate in practical ways an intention to change the attitudes that matter. On money, for example. It is a sick symbol of America's money-orientation that there is no effective limit on political spending.

What kind of a country is it when a single member of Nelson Rockefeller's family can give him $2.8 million for a gubernatorial campaign? The President vetoed a bill that would have done something about that.

Or take the question of the environment. More parks are a fine thing, but what do they matter if the attitudes that have allowed the air and river and seas around us to become poisoned in the pursuit of efficiency and profit remain unchanged?

★ ★ ★

Here again Nixon has an easy way to show that he understands the change really needed. That is to abandon his support of the supersonic transport.

The SST is a fair test of seriousness because it is an extreme example of the social blindness that has alienated ordinary people. For the sake of a handful of first-class air travellers — and aircraft workers whose grievance could be relieved in ways so much less costly and damaging — Nixon is proposing to build planes that will annoy millions and possibly damage the atmosphere. The values are upside-down.

We may not share Charles Reich's faith in the inevitable greening of America. But we do know that there are things wrong with the values of our society that will have to change in any movement that calls itself a New American Revolution.

Students Plan Adventure Playgrounds

Adventure playgrounds are among the Centennial projects to be undertaken by Saanich Peninsula school students with the aid of parent-teacher groups and use of school shop equipment.

North Saanich Junior Secondary vice-principal Gordon Taylor outlined plans at Saanich Peninsula school board Monday night for active participation by local youngsters in a three-part Centennial program.

Elementary schools will be invited to order outdoor playthings such as a "tire climb," a jumping horse or climbing stairs, which will then be drafted by Claremont students and built in workshops at Royal Oak, Mount Newton and North Saanich secondary schools.

A day of music is being staged at McPherson Theatre March 7 with the North Saanich and district school band, Claremont choir and a mass elementary school choir particiating.

Many students will take part in "environmental control" projects such as the clearing of a creek in Centennial Park in Central Saanich, clearing of trails at Horth Hill Park in North Saanich, improving Melville Park in Sidney, part of Colquitz Creek near Royal Oak Secondary and the south end of Elk Lake near Claremont.

FIELD TRIPS

These field trips will be staff-supervised with qualified assistance from municipalities involved, Taylor emphasized. All projects will be carried out on a total budget of $50.

In other business:

- Claremont will function on an extended-day system next September with acceptance by school board Monday of the education committee recommendation. The senior secondary school, built to accommodate 650 students, now has an enrolment of 728 with more expected next fall.

Trustee Harry Tobin said that in comparison with the cost of installing more portable classrooms the extra transportation costs involved in a shift system would be very small;

- School board approved an application from Saanich Teachers' Association for a one-day session at Claremont School Feb. 26 with talks based on "Is Today's Education Relevant to the Community?"
- The board decided to study increases of charges for rent and use of school facilities. Trustee John Pennington recommended that the board come to some decision before "the situation gets out of hand. We appear to be giving these facilities away";
- The board rescinded a motion suspending the sale of soft drinks by vending machines at school cafeterias.

SIDNEY COUNCIL REJECTS YOUTH USE OF HALL LEAN-TO

The fate of Sidney Youth Council hangs in the balance while Sidney council tries to agree on the need for a youth drop-in centre.

A proposal to use and renovate part of Sanscha Community Hall for this purpose was turned down after argument at Sidney council Monday.

Fire in late November destroyed the drop-in centre provided by the municipality at the town hall. About $7,500 damage resulted from the blaze, attributed by the fire marshal "to careless handling of a cigarette."

Since that time the 175-member youth council has been without headquarters.

CENTRES 'OBSOLETE'

A submission that the Sanscha lean-to be renovated under supervision of municipal building inspector Hans Schnieder with aid of teenagers met with disapproval of Ald. Wilkie Gardner who said that drop-in centres are obsolete.

Ald. Herb Perry felt that taxpayers should not have to subsidize youth group facilities and emphasized the need for supervision of a drop-in centre.

The proposal was sent to committee for study over the objections of Ald. Norma Sealey who felt that council was not supporting local youth.

Grants Help Provide New Era for Sailing

The Physical Fitness and Amateur Sports Fund of B.C., established in 1970, began a new era for sailing and other amateur sports, says Dick Sharpe, president of the B.C. Yachting Association.

Sharpe told delegates attending the annual meeting of the Canadian Yachting Association, held at the Empress Hotel on the weekend, that his group had recieved $13,500, $1,500 of which was a holdover from the 1969 federal-provincial athletic support program.

Some of the money, Sharpe said, was used to send sailors to compete in meets in Europe.

Allotments to the competitors were made on the basis of the Canadian association scale plus a "half-ton-tow" allowance of three cents a mile where a competitor used a trailer for a boat, or boats, whose combined class weights exceed 1,000 pounds.

A third of the grant was used to establish a mobile sailing school which toured the Okanagan and East Kootenay areas. Nearly 500 people used these services.

A further quarter of the fund was used to help junior competitive and training facilities.

A fund was also set up to bring world medalists to B.C. to compete and hold seminars with local sailors. Among them was Duuk Van Heel of Holland, Flying Junior world champion, who visited Victoria and Vancouver.

Sharpe said there was a sharp increase in numbers of B.C. sailors competing in the Canadian Olympic regatta at Kingston, Ont.

Federal travel grants to the province exceeded $9,000 in 1970. The grants were administered by the Canadian association, allowing 20 B.C. skippers and crews to travel to Kingston.

Great Lakes

Earnings during 1970 declined 13.8 per cent due to freeing the currency, reports Great Lakes Paper Co., of Thunder Bay.

Sales rose 5.9 per cent to a record $79.66 million for record shipments—519,807 tons—although newsprint shipments declined 4.4 per cent.

Earnings were $4.34 million ($1.21 a share) vs. $5 million ($1.40), including a change in reporting that raised the net by $430,000 or 12 cents a share. But despite that, unpegging the dollar depressed earnings by $1.25 million (35 cents a share).

Gulf Oil

Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. earned $40.4 million or 89 cents a share during 1970 compared with $45.5 million or $1 a share the previous year.

The 1970 earnings included $1.2 million in extraordinary gain from foreign exchange after Canadian dollar exchange value increased.

The company said the decrease in earnings was caused by interest charges for development of new refineries, an increase in provision for income taxes, operating problems with a plant at Varennes, Que., and price erosion.

Sales and operating revenue increased by $20.3 million to $675.6 million.

Merger

Houston Oils Ltd. and Ensign Oils Ltd. have completed formal arrangements for merger.

The new company will be called Houston Oils Ltd. and each Ensign shareholder receives 1 1-3 shares in the amalgamated company, with headquarters at the Houston office in Calgary.

Trimac

Agreement to join operations has been made by Trimac Ltd. freight transport company and Rentway Canada Ltd., a truck rental system, both of Calgary.

Trimac is a large carrier of liquid and dry bulk commodities by highway transport, operating more than 1,300 units, while Rentway has a rent-lease fleet of more than 1,000 vehicles across Canada.

Besides its leasing and operating divisions spanning much of the continent, Trimac has interests in motor carrier manufacturing, transport systems management, consulting, intermodule bulk services and development of the Roberts Bank terminal.

Bushnell

Efforts to raise $28 million for the purchase of Canadian Marconi and Thomson-Davies broadcasting facilities have been unsuccessful to date, reports Bushnell Communications Ltd., of Ottawa.

Failure to buy the Thomson-Davies group resulted in a loss of $825,000, but efforts are continuing to find a way to buy Canadian Marconi broadcasting division, against which $4 million has been deposited. The money is subject to forfeit if a deal is not made by Feb. 26.

Consolidated net earnings last year were $459,571 (27 cents a share) vs. $742,485 (52 cents), but extraordinary earnings totalled $5 million, including the above-mentioned deposit. Gross revenue from operations rose 11 per cent to $8.9 million.

New York Trading Records Fall Like Tenpins

NEW YORK (WP) — Stock market trading records fell like the famous confetti in Wall Street Monday. With mutual funds and other institutions generating the bulk of the volume, Monday's session posted these new marks:

- The biggest one-day volume in New York Stock Exchange history — 25.59 million shares.
- The highest combined NYSE-American stock exchange turnover — 32.3 million shares.
- The largest single block trade ever executed on the big board — 3.248 million shares of Allis-Chalmers Mfg. Co.

Of the three new records, the combined NYSE-AMEX figure may be the most important. Industry leaders have estimated that the brokers' back offices can handle a peak of 27 million shares a day. The most optimistic estimates put the total around 30 million shares, on a continuing basis.

KEEPING PACE

Nevertheless, brokers continued to insist that they are keeping up with the trading, unlike the 1967-9 period when back offices were swamped in work and forced the industry to go on shorter working hours.

A typical comment came from Alger B. Chapman, Jr., president of Shearson, Hammill and Co., Inc. "We're staying right up to date," Chapman said.

Trading activity remained largely institutional. The NYSE reported 126 transactions involving 10,000 shares or more, compared with 127 big blocks on Friday. Large block trading is considered a barometer of institutional participation.

The heavy dealings by mutual funds, banks, pension funds, and other institutions has been a boon to the brokers. Large traders generate relatively less paperwork and consequently less pressure on back offices.

Chapman noted, however, that Monday's turnover could be considered the equivalent— in paperwork load — of 15 or 16 million shares traded by small investors. "That's the kind of volume that got everybody in trouble two years ago, but it isn't happening this time," he said.

LAG IN TAPE

The day's turnover on the NYSE eclipsed the previous record of 22.03 million shares set last Tuesday. Monday's volume would have been a new record even without the block of Allis-Chalmers. The press of transactions pushed the exchange's ticker tape two minutes behind the floor pace at the opening and produced the same lag at the close. The tape ran late sporadically throughout the day.

The block of Allis-Chalmers, nearly three times the size of the previous record-holder, was sold by White Consolidated Industries, which has been trying to gain control of the heavy equipment maker.

The trade was handled by Salomon Bros. It was only the second largest trade in dollar volume, with a value of 58.5 million. That record is held by a block of American Standard preferred stock, at $76.1 million. The biggest prior trade in number of shares was 1.184 million shares of Goodyear Tire traded last July 22.

Volume on the NYSE so far this year is running more than 60 per cent ahead of the 1970 pace. Through Monday's session, the exchange has turned over 479.87 million shares, compared with 292.12 million in the same period last year.

American Exchange volume, while well ahead of the 1970 rate, has not shown as great a jump. Including Monday's figures, AMEX volume this year is 130.866 million shares, up from 108.591 million in 1970.

Johnston

Higher revenue and cash flow but lower net income was reported for 1970 by Johnston Terminals and Storage Ltd., which blamed the economy and labor disputes for the decline.

The company had revenue amounting to $21.96 million, up from $21 million, while expenses rose from $20 million to $21 million.

Net income was $546,000 compared with $800,000, or $1.01 vs. $1.50 a share. Cash flow was $3.51, up from $3.23 a share in 1969. Depreciation cost $1.3 million, almost five times the amount designated in 1969.

PRESS AGENT FOR MADISON SQUARE GARDEN FIGHTS . . . . . . BECOMES HIGHLY-PAID THUMB-TWIDDLER

Getting $150 for Ringside Seats Was No Problem

By SHIRLEY POVICH

The Washington Post

NEW YORK — John Condon, for 11 years has worked for Madison Square Garden as its inventive, vigorous press agent for the Garden's fights, is now a highly-paid thumb-twiddler. There are no more fight tickets to sell. The day the Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier fight was announced it unloosed a stampede to the box office.

"I find it difficult to adjust," said Condon, adjusting one of the gaudy cravats that, with his berets, are the trademarks of the prize fight business's most distinguished flak. "Here it is, a month before the fight, and I'm just baby-sitting for it. There is nothing to promote."

So rapid was the sellout for Ali-Frazier that the Garden people themselves are scrounging for seats to placate some important customers they overlooked. Getting $150 for the ringside seats was no problem. Finding more of them is. Within hours after the first public sale of tickets, the Garden had in the till the $1,250,000 dollars for which the house is scaled.

"Ordinarily at this time, I'd be promoting angles to help the ticket sales," said Condon, "but they've imobilized me with no more seats to peddle. Yank Durham, Frazier's manager, is now screaming for a black referee. I could have made a big thing out of that. Now let Durham shout into a vacuum. Who needs him?"

Before the Frazier-Jerry Quarry fight, Condon came up with the original idea of setting up a boxing ring in Times Square for Frazier's sparring sessions. He got Mayor Lindsay's permission, and tons of ink in the papers and a big play on television. "But for this fight, I haven't even invited a single sports columnist to lunch," said Condon, as if this were very incredible.

"The whole promotion, the quick sellout, has left me with that useless, hung-up feeling," said Condon. "What is there left for a press agent to do when they sell out the fight in the Garden at $150 tops, and then only 100 feet away from the live show in the ring they sell out the Garden's 3,400 seats in the Felt Forum for closed-circuit at $20 a ticket? Who needs me?"

To battle the creeping ennui, the complete boredom of it all, Condon has invented a new category in the traditional tale of the tape, the comparative measurements of the two fighters, without which no prefight publicity is complete. "This time there is more than size of neck, size of chest, size of wrist, size of calf," said Condon. "I've put in size of mouth."

Honset, he said that it's actually going to be in the official tale of the tape this time, size of mouth, normal and expanded, just like they measure the chest, normal and expanded. "Naturally Muhammad Ali came up with an edge over Frazier in this department," said Condon, "and the figures are official."

With the help of Angelo Dundee, trainer for the former Cassius Clay, Condon said he got a measurement of the comparative mouth sizes of Ali and Frazier. "For Ali, the figures are," said Condon, "mouth closed, 6 inches. Mouth open 8½ inches."

What good the advantage in mouth expanded will be to Ali, Condon would not venture, but he intimated it has served Ali well in the past. "For this fight, we're going to have separate weigh-ins. We don't want Ali spouting off and psyching Frazier, who is a nice, steady chap. But let's face it, Joe can't cope with Ali in these face-to-face confrontations out of the ring. We're protecting him."

There are still closed-circuit television seats to sell around the country, but that is not the Garden's business, or Condon's. The Garden has only a tiny bit of the closed-circuit rights, most of which it was already sold off for a tidy profit, on everything, of $750,000. It is the Garden's biggest haul, ever, in its fight promotion history.

This has happened without Condon turning his mind to a single trick that would help to stimulate the ticket sales. "I don't like it. I'm threatened with dry rot," he said.

SHADES OF THE B.C. LIONS

Remember all the slogans the British Columbia Lions have had in their seasons in the Western Football Conference. Things like . . . "The Lions will Roar in '64." Well, the Green Packers have sloganitis, too. They tried "The Pack Will Be Back" for the 1970 National Football League campaign. That didn't work, so they hired a new coach, Dan Devine, and quickly coined a new slogan, which Devine hopefully displays. (AP Wirephoto)

Delight of Cautious Horse-Player Perishes As Jockey Club Gives Ontario New System

TORONTO (CP) — The show bet — delight of the cautious bettor — died on Jockey Club thoroughbred tracks in Ontario with the announcement of a revised system of wagering.

The Star, in a dispatch from Los Angeles quoting E. P. Taylor, chairman of the Jockey Club's board of directors, said exactor betting would be extended to cover seven of the nine races each day at Woodbine, Greenwood and Fort Erie tracks and that England's two-way betting system would be introduced.

Jockey Club officials here were not immediately available for comment.

Under the new system, the gambler will have the opportunity to bet the daily double on the first two races, a feat which requires the picking of the winner of both races to pay off.

On the next seven races, he may bet an exactor in which success calls for the successful chocie of the first two horses in each race — in the precise order of finish.

Win betting will continue in it's present form, but place wagering changes completely.

Under the new system, when there are eight or more horses in a race, a place bet will be cashed if it is on a horse that finishes first, second or third. If there are seven or fewer horses, the horse bet to place must finish first or second.

In harness racing, the Jockey Club earlier added an exactor and a $3 quinella. The club now has a daily double, two exactors and the $3 quinella.

In quinella betting, the object is to pick the first two finishers in a race but not necessarily in the order of finish.

RECORD PAYOFF

Figures Wouldn't Fit on Tote Board

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — There was just the simple announcement over the public address system at the New Orleans Fair Grounds that a $2 bet had just paid off $25,527.

They had to announce it over the loudspeaker because they can't fit a sum like $25,257 into the flashing lights on the tote board.

The collective gasp from the crowd of 7,000 was a mixture of astonishment, delight and envy.

"I was so shocked all I could think about was getting home," said Calvin McManus, a 21-year-old navy veteran of Vietnam who now works as a bus boy in a New Orleans restaurant. He held the lone winning ticket Monday.

McManus arrived at the horse race track "with only $10 to bet and that $2 on the exacta was my first bet of the day."

The first exacta was the fourth race. To win an exacta, the bettor must pick the winner and runner-up.

McManus was the only one at the track who managed to turn that trick in the fourth race.

For one thing, Mae W. S., the horse he picked to win, was such a long shot she paid $281.60.

The horse he chose for second, Driprint, hadn't inspired much confidence either, paying $17.40.

The exacta payoff was a record for horse tracks in North America. The previous high was $9,224 last Nov. 14 at Lincoln Downs.

O'Flaherty Named Rochester Coach

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Dick Gamble, 42, was fired Monday as coach and general manager of Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League. Vancouver Canucks, owners of the Rochester team, named chief scout John O'Flaherty, 52, as coach for the rest of the season. Doug Adam, another Vancouver scout, was named general manager.

Pressure Falls on Rangers In Boston 'Four-Pointer'

By The Canadian Press

The pressure will be on New York Rangers tonight when they go into Boston for another "four-point" game against the Bruins in the battle for the National Hockey League East Division lead.

A win for the Rangers could put them within five points of the leading Bruins, but a loss would leave them nine points back and hard-pressed to regain a challenging position with only two months left in the schedule.

The key encounter at Boston is one of four games tonight — busiest Tuesday night yet in the current season.

At Montreal, the Canadiens will be fighting to widen their lead over Toronto Maple Leafs in the battle for third place in the East when they play host to Pittsburgh Penguins.

LEAFS FACE BLUES

At the same time the Leafs, now just four points behind Montreal, hope to close the gap when they face the Blues in St. Louis.

In the other game at Vancouver, Buffalo Sabres meet the Canucks.

The Rangers were in a neck-and-neck battle with the Bruins for most of rhe first half of the schedule but have slowly dropped behind. In their last head-on encounter with the Bruins Jan. 27 in New York, the Rangers were lucky to manage a 2-2 tie.

GIACOMIN HAS FLU

They go into Boston tonight without the services of goalie Ed Giacomin, who will stay at home to nurse a case of the flu.

The Rangers called up Peter McDuffe from Omaha in the Central Hockey League Monday to back up their other regular netminder, Gilles Villemure.

Returning to the Canadiens' lineup at Montreal tonight will be right winger Claude Larose. He has been out of action since Jan. 23 when he suffered a concussion during a game against Detroit Red Wings.

The Montreal game also is crucial to the Penguins who are only one point back of fourth-place Minnesota North Stars in the West and two behind third-place Philadelphia Flyers.

SCHMAUTZ SHIFTS

The Vancouver contest could see the first appearance in a Canucks' uniform of right winger Bob Schmautz, who was purchased from Seattle Totems of the Western League.

Schmautz, a 25-year-old Saskatoon native, has previous NHL experience with Chicago Black Hawks during the 1967-68 and 68-69 seasons.

The Canucks announced they also sent forwards Ed Hatoum and Jim Wiste to the Totems on loan for the remainder of the season.

In Chicago, Black Hawks' coach Billy Reay said he expects Bobby Hull to report for practice today after x-rays showed the left winger suffered no broken bones when he piled into the boards during a game Sunday night.

Hull escaped with only a badly-bruised right hip and elbow.

Graybeard Second Across Line

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuter)—The Canadian ketch Graybeard became the second finisher today in the 3,600-mile Cape Town-to-Rio yacht race.

Graybeard, with Lol Killam of Vancouver at the helm, crossed the finish line almost 24 hours after the British ketch Ocean Spirit headed the field home Monday morning.

The official winner has not yet been declared because the race is based on handicap and corrected sailing times will determine the winner.

The French ketch Striana moved into first position on handicap today as the majority of the yachts in the race neared the finish line.

MOORE, STONE DECIDE CURLING TITLE TODAY

KIMBERLEY — Gordie Moore of Victoria, the 1969 provincial men's senior champion, faced a rink skipped by Reg Stone of Trail today in the deciding match of a best-of-three playoff for the British Columbia seniors' curling championship.

The rinks split two games Monday, Moore edging Stone 8-7 in the opener and Stone coming back for an 11-5 win in the second match.

The turning point in the afternoon game came in the fifth end when Moore missed a takeout, allowing Stone to draw for three with his last rock.

Douglas Crew Regains Lead

Greater depth paved the way to victory as Hotel Douglas downed Labatts 98-93 Monday at Central Junior High School to take back sole possession of first place in the Victoria Senior Men's Basketball League.

The lead switched hands several times before Hotelmen hit for eight straight points early in the second half and moved ahead 65-57. Another 11-point string gave an 88-71 lead and enough cushion to withstand a desperate rally by Labs late in the game.

John Lauvaas, Al Glover and Bill Carlson each contributed over 20 points to pace Hotel Douglas and offset a 41-point performance by Labs' Bob Burrows.

Lauvaas fired 29 points, including 15 from the foul line; Glover chipped in 27, including 22 in the final half; and Carlson sank 21, including 13 in the opening half.

ISLAND JUNIOR RUGBY REPS — TEAMS TO PLAY SATURDAY

Shawnigan Players Dominate Selections

Victoria Rugby Union officials have announced Vancouver Island junior (under-19) and Colt (under-17) representative teams which will battle mainland squads in trials to select opponents for a touring Japanese high school side.

Both teams will get their first taste of action this Saturday at Macdonald Park when juniors face Castaways of the first division at 2:30 p.m. after Colts tackle University School at 1.

Trial matches for provincial selections will be played Feb. 21, 27 and March 7 with the middle date at Macdonald Park and the others in Vancouver.

The Japanese side will tour B.C. from March 20 to April 5 with matches against Victoria Junior Reps in Royal Athletic Park (March 22), Island Junior Reps (excluding Victoria) at Cowichan Bay (March 25), Vancouver Junior Reps at Brockton Oval in Vancouver (March 28), B.C. Colt Reps, Brockton Oval (March 31) and B.C. Junior Reps, Thunderbird Stadium in Vancouver (April 4).

Shawnigan Lake Boys' School dominated the VRU selections for an Island junior representative squad with seven players — Chris Mills, Bob Ougtred, Gordie Creamer, Chuck Backman, Eric Williams, Larry Chung and captain Bob Carere.

Other players picked were Barry Ronnigan, Pat Kyle and Rick Price of Cowichan; Andy Hilliard, Rick Dade and Dan McCarten of Castaways as well as Brian Hawkesworth and Murray Bayles of Brentwood College.

Alternates named to the junior squad were Craig Dykes, Mel Reeves and Dan Davies of Castaways; Steve Bramell of Brentwood and Steve Thompson of Uvic.

Named to the Colts' side were Brentwood's John Bradford, Reg Stewart, Derek Arnoldi, Geoff McAllister and Bob Williams; Shawnigan's Peter Macdonald, Mike Eayds, Henry Alvarez and Harold Hayes; Nanaimo's Gwyn Morgan, Alf Schulz and Jim Scott; Oak Bay's Ian Bruce, James Bay's Craig Thorber and captain Dwain van Euwen of Cowichan.

Ivor Ford and Alan Rees were picked to coach the Island juniors while Nick Prowse was selected to guide the Colts.

Viking Hopes Vanish

University of Winnipeg Wesmen and Lethbridge Chinooks combined Monday to erase flickering chances that University of Victoria Vikings might grab the fourth and final playoff spot in the Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association men's basketball league.

Either a Viking loss or a Wesmen win would have been enough to oust Victoria and the Vikings got clipped both ways.

While Vikings were ending their regular-season schedule with a 78-70 loss against Lethbride Chinooks at Lethbridge, Wesmen were clinching fourth place by winning an 80-78 thriler against Brandon Bobcats.

BISONS ON TOP

In other games, Manitoba Bisons clinched first place by downing Saskatchewan Huskies 74-54 in Saskatoon and UBC Thunderbirds bowed out of a tie for first place by dropping a 67-65 decision to Alberta Golden Bears in Edmonton.

League scoring leader Tim Tollestrup led Chinooks to victory with 36 points. Strong support for Chinooks came from Brian Sanders (14) and Jim Gladstone (12).

Britain Loses Richest Events

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain's two richest golf tournaments, the $180,000 John Player classic and the $124,800 Alcan Golfer of the Year championship, will not be held this year.

A spokesman for 'Players' said the organizers had difficulty getting top Americans to compete.

No reason was given for scrapping the Alcan championship.

Maplettes Ready For Games Trip

Victoria Maplettes, who will represent British Columbia at the women's basketball competition at the Canada Winter Games in Saskatoon beginning this weekend, are on the home stretch of their drive to collect $1,000 to offset added expenses imposed by the trip.

Maplettes, the Inter-City Senior Women's Basketball League champions, leave Thursday for Saskatoon and play their first game on Friday.

Currently the fund stands at $576.

Among recent contributions to the "kitty" were donations of $100 from Leonard C. Eggins, $50 from John B. Tribe, $10 from Mr. and Mrs. T. Sawden and $10 from Thos. Plimley Ltd.

Contributions may be left at Yorkshire Trust Co., the Ingraham Hotel or Victoria Sporting Goods.

Maplettes, meanwhile, warmed up for the Games' competition with an 85-33 victory over University of Victoria Vikettes on Monday at Cedar Hill Junior High School.

Barb Tribe topped Maplettes with 16 points while Elaine Grenon finished with 11 points to lead Vikettes.

Top Batsman For England Out of Test

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — Geoff Boycott, England's leading batsman, was ruled out of Friday's seventh test against Australia when his left forearm was broken in the one-day cricket match between Marylebone Cricket Club and western Australia here Monday.

* * *

Boycott was struck on the arm by the third ball of the match from test fast bowler Graham McKenzie.

An X-ray examination revealed a fracture just above the wrist.

The match was abandoned because of rain with Western Australia 24 for two off 5.4 overs in reply to MCC's 152 all out in 39.3 overs. Basil d'Oliveira was MCC's top-scorer with 54.

GREEN TAKES SQUASH TITLE AT PORTLAND

Olympics May Flounder If Avery Loses Battle

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — The modern Olympic Games which began 75 years ago in sunny Greece could begin to flounder in 1972 in Sapporo, site of the Winter Games.

That is the view of the president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, Clifford Buck of Denver.

In Buck's eyes, the straw which threatens to break the back of the Olympic tradition is the quarrel between Avery Brundage of the United States, president of the International Olympic Committee, and the International Skiing Federation (FIS) over the amateur status of star Alpine skiers likely to compete here next year.

The modern Summer Games were revived in 1896. They were a continuation of the Olympics which ran every four years for at least 1200 years in ancient Greece.

The Winter Games, which now threaten the oldest sports show on earth, are comparative Johnny-come-latelys. The first was staged in 1924 at Chamonix.

Brundage ruled that 10 Apline skiers were ineligible for the 1972 Olympics because they worked at an American summer ski camp. They include world slalom champion Jean-Noel Augert of France.

Later, Brundage said he was polling members of the IOC to find out whether they agree with his ruling. The results of his poll have not been announced.

If Brundage loses his battle, the future of the games — both Summer and Winter — will be in grave doubt, says Buck.

Speaking at the start of the pre-Olympic winter meeting being staged on this northernmost of the main Japanese islands, Buck said that the issue is one that goes deeper than the fate of a few individuals.

"The Olympic spirit is what is at stake," he said. "The Games from their beginning have been based on amateurism. It is what they are all about. The words Olympics and amateurism are interchangeable. Once you start giving ground on this line, where do you stop?"

BUCK A VETERAN

Tall and white-haired, Buck is a veteran of 14 years service alongside Brundage either as president or member of the American committee.

He says he feels strongly about the rightness of Brundage's position. And, he adds, in the years to come it will be found that the venerable patriarch of Olympic sport was the representative of all that is good in the Olympic spirit.

Brundage is not coming to Sapporo for the pre-Olympic warmup, but FIS president Marc Hodler of Switzerland arrived after the opening ceremonies.

TALKS SCHEDULED

He expressed hope that the dispute with Brundage could be smoothed over, perhaps through talks here with the Japanese organizers who are understandably eager to have everyone and everything in place next year.

Tsuneyoshi Takeda, Japanese members of the IOC, said he will begin talks with Hodler within a few days.

At Megeve, in France, Hodler said a week ago that all skiing events would be withdrawn from the Sapporo Olympics if Brundage disqualifies the top Alpine skiers he accuses of paid professionalism.

Quebec Teachers Spur Protests

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 50,000 Montreal students had their classes cancelled Monday as rotating walkouts by teachers protesting provincial reclassifications measures continued.

Spokesmen for the 9,500-member Alliance des Professeurs de Montreal and English-language Protestant teachers have indicated that their campaign of rotating study sessions will continue.

The alliance, representing French-speaking Catholic teachers, said Monday that it will not halt its disruptive tactics until agreement is reached with the Montreal Catholic school commission on the touchy issue of teacher reclassification and salary reductions.

The board maintains that the issue cannot be solved at a local level but only through province-wide negotiations between the teachers and the Quebec education department.

In Quebec City, where the protest action spread Monday, Education Minister Guy Saint-Pierre said Monday night that the government will not negotiate with the Montreal teachers until they return to work.

"We are ready to re-examine the process of reclassification," Mr. Saint-Pierre said on a radio program carried throughout the province. "We are ready to sit down with them, but we are asking that they go back to work first.

"We must establish a normal climate in our classrooms for the benefit of the children and then we can reopen negotiations."

About 25 teachers occupied the Quebec City offices of the Quebec Federation of Catholic School Boards in suburban Ste. Foy Monday morning, protesting teacher reclassification. However, they were forcibly ejected by police and taken into custody.

A police spokesman said some charges may be laid against the teachers, members of the Quebec City Teachers Association.

In Montreal, the occupation of the Catholic board headquarters continued and the alliance said a so-called "commando group" of teachers remained inside regional offices of the education department.

Walkouts by the 3,000-member Montreal Teachers Association continued, cancelling classes for about 8,000 students. The Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers is co-ordinating protests in the Protestant school system across Quebec.

The teacher protests, which began Jan. 25, have resulted in reaction from parents groups. A spokesman for La Federation des Unions de Famille said "our children are being used, and we are pretty sick and tired of it."

Another parents group representing 300 families kept their children at home Monday and called a meeting of all Montreal parent-school organizations to express indignation about the entire reclassification dispute.

For the first time since walkouts by the alliance began two weeks ago, all Montreal Catholic schools were open Monday morning, but 40,000 students were sent home at noon when 1,700 teachers walked out. Walkouts in the city's Protestant schools began Friday. English-language Catholic schools have been relatively untouched by the dispute.

They Could Buy a Lake For That

CHESAPEAKE, Va. (AP) — T. E. Jones received a two-month water bill from the city last August for $1,318.17. Ella L. Johnson's bill was $1,015.53.

The city said Thursday there was no error in billing, that a leak had poured some four million gallons of water from the two houses into the sewage system.

The city's law does not allow for wiping the slate clean, but permits the city to bill a customer for what the water cost the utility department.

Jones's new bill came to $790 and Mrs. Johnson's to $579.

Though appealing for a law change, Jones said he would pay his bill in instalments. Mrs. Johnson said she would wait for the law to be examined before making her decision.

UNIT PRICE COSTS URGED AS BEST SHOPPER GUIDE

TORONTO (CP) — Every supermarket should be required to show shoppers how much a product costs by unit of weight, Professor Jacob Zeigel said Monday.

Prof. Ziegel's views are included in a personal brief sent to the special joint committee of the Senate and House of Commons on consumer credit and prices.

He is a specialist in commercial law at Osgoode Hall Law School, York University.

The brief is supported by a study of three suburban supermarkets conducted by three Osgoode Hall law students.

Results of the survey, which was limited to six products, were attached to the brief as an appendix. The survey found that:

—Many products cost less per unit of weight when purchased in a smaller size.

—A lack of consistency in weight sizes makes price comparisons difficult for a hurried shopper. There were 18 different sizes of cereals, 17 different sizes of toothpaste, and 15 sizes of powdered detergents.

—The price per ounce varied by more than 900 per cent in some cases and never by less than 250 per cent.

NOT TOO STRONG

In his brief, Prof. Ziegel replies to criticisms of the Consumer Packaging and Labelling Bill for being too stringent. "Nothing could be further from the truth," he said.

He cites sections of the Food and Drugs Act, the Textile Labelling Act and the Motor Vehicles Safety and others as having broader powers than the bill for protecting consumers.

He said the bill should be tightened to include uniform terminology describing different weight sizes.

"Terms such as jumbo, giant, family and regular sizes are used in the widest variety of contexts and with a disconcerting lack of modesty," said Prof. Ziegel.

"It is anomalous that the current bill should require the disclosure of weights and completely ignore the equally important disclosure of price," he says.

Report May End U.K. Mail Strike

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — Hopes of a settlement in the British postal strike, three weeks old tonight, seem to be riding on a court of inquiry's report, due soon, concerning the pay claims of the country's electricity workers.

The strike already has cost the post office £10 million ($25 million) in lost revenue, although part of this has been made up through increased revenue from telephone calls.

Published predictions are that the inquiry on the electricity dispute may recommend pay increases of more than the government-approved maximum of 10 per cent for the men who operate Britain's power stations.

If this happens, the Union of Post Office Workers will consider itself in a good position to put negotiating pressure on the post office for a pay offer of more than the eight per cent, beyond which management has refused to go in the mail dispute.

SEES POSSIBLE BREAK

Union leader Tom Jackson referred to this possibility Sunday in predicting a possible break in the strike situation this week.

Jackson also said the post office may want to settle quickly because of the expected confusion over decimalization of British currency, starting Feb. 15, and the increased charges for mailing which are to be inaugurated that same day.

But Revor Carpenter, director of postal headquarters in Scotland, threw cold water on Jackson's theory with a statement Monday that management's offer remains eight per cent.

The only alternative to this, Carpenter went on, is arbitration of the dispute, which involves 230,000 postal workers throughout Britain.

With the end of the strike's third week, postmen should realize they have already lost seven or eight per cent of their wages for the year through the strike action, the Scottish official said.

Service First For CN—MPs

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian National Railways must not be sidetracked on to the profit route from its mainline of public service the Commons was told Monday. The government should get a national transportation policy on the rails.

In debate on the CNR-Air Canada financing bill, MPs from all parties said the Crown-owned railway should provide transportation first, then worry about profits.

The bill, which was sent to committee after second reading, would provide CNR up to $229 million for 1970 expenses such as equipment, property, branch lines, communications and hotels.

It would provide another $80 million for the first six months of 1971 for obligations incurred before January, and a further $163 million for other capital projects in the same period.

The bill would also guarantee loans and debentures of Air Canada up to $174 million.

Today, the House is to resume debate on the reorganization bill that provides for expansion of the cabinet and the establishment of an environment department.

Doug Rowland (NDP—Selkirk) urged a national transportation policy to replace the current piecemeal approach.

First priority should be service to the public, rather than turning a profit, he said.

Mr. Rowland said the government should exercise greater control over CNR, Air Canada and other Crown corporations. Regulatory agencies, such as the Canadian transport commission, also should be tied more closely to government policy.

The government should experiment with better passenger train methods to prevent the "absolute madness" of increased use of cars—and consequent pollution and public cost of highways.

The government should also relieve the railway of its interest payments on debts incurred when the CNR was formed in 1923, he said.

Without the interest payments, the company could operate at a profit.

Charles Turner (L—London East) agreed that "taxpayers should have some say when and where the trains will run."

The former CNR locomotive engineer called the transport commission a rubber stamp for the railways' decisions. He said J. W. Pickersgill, former Liberal transport minister, should resign as commission president.

He said profits should not be the first aim of the company, and urged the government to subsidize rail transport in the same way it provides airport facilities for airlines.

Mr. Thomas criticized the government for reducing rail subsidies on Maritime runs without compensating aid to shippers.

The result of this policy had been increased costs to Maritime industries.

Earlier in the Commons, Finance Minister E. J. Benson disputed an Economic Council of Canada prediction Friday that business investment this year will increase by nine per cent—the 1970 level.

He said he would stick with the industry department prediction of 11 per cent and said the council's survey, conducted in October, 1969, "is not a very good indication."

The council's omission from its survey intentions in the agricultural, fishing and housing industries was "a very serious deficiency."

Roland Godin (Creditiste—Portneuf) said the railway, which had rejected inspection from outside auditors, had lost $371 million from its books.

He suggested the sum had gone into the election fund of the Liberal party, which had never wanted to reveal the sources of its campaign money.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax-East Hants) turned the debate to Air Canada, saying the airline should remove its first-class accommodation on domestic flights.

James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) said Newfoundland was getting inadequate service on the ferry runs from the mainland.

He also expressed fear that CNR was planning to reduce its rail freight service on the island as well as the coastal ferry service.

Lorne Nystrom (NDP—Yorkton-Melville) said the current lack of national transportation policy was imposing special hardships on rural communities that are the first to lose rail service.

'Unending Sparring Match'

Unions Out-Jockey Councils

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

Civil service unions seeking new contracts with Greater Victoria municipalities are far better organized than the local governments, Victoria council was warned Monday.

City manager Bill Hooson told aldermen following a special council meeting that "perhaps we have been a little too casual" in the past in negotiating with the unions.

Hooson gave aldermen a half-hour briefing on the procedures that have developed over a number of years, describing them as a "sparring match that never finishes."

After working out a new contract, "the next year, you are right back at it."

●

But Hooson said he thinks the actual contract proposals on both sides should be kept confidential to prevent "polarization" and hardening of arguments.

"We try to reach a settlement each year — we don't want strikes."

Aldermen later discussed actual contract details in a closed meeting with Hooson and personnel director Terry Fitzpatrick.

Hooson said the unions have a "more refined" system of bargaining than their employers. For one thing, they "stand united" from one municipality to the next, whereas each municipality bargains on its own.

The unions also use a "divide and conquer" technique, taking advantage of the poor organization of the local governments.

"Leapfrogging" of contract victories is used from one municipality to the next. If a good settlement is reached in one area, it is usually attempted in the next, with the argument that its prior use gives it validity.

●

This technique could be important to larger governments to watch out for. An unrealistically high settlement in a very small municipality may be accepted to preserve good personal relations and because it may not amount to much money in absolute terms.

But if the scale is transferred to a larger municipality, the dollar amount could be enormous.

"Let's make no mistake," Hooson said. "A settlement in any one of those areas will affect all others."

The unions also employ "statistical dazzlement" in their arguments and "their's are usually better" than the city's.

The big advantage of the unions is their use of one bargaining agent, Hooson said. In fact, one agent negotiates 87 contracts.

●

They use an over-all strategy which they can "modify quickly — we are not as quick."

"I don't think we will become as effective (as the unions) until we have a single unit for the whole area."

Of the several unions employed by the city, the Canadian Union of Public Employees is the largest. The 1970 payroll in Victoria was about $7 million, or almost a third of the budget.

Air Firm Protests Licence Denial

Charges of monopoly and licence violation flew in Victoria charter airplane circles today in the wake of rejection by Ottawa of an application to operate a second charter service here.

The Canadian Transport Commission in Ottawa this morning rejected a request for a charter and recreational flying licence submitted by Flight Centre Victoria.

The commission said it was not convinced the demand could not be handled by the existing licensee, Victoria Flying Services Ltd.

The application by Flight Centre was opposed, the commission said, by Victoria Flying Services, the Victoria Flying Club and Air West Airlines.

'DISSERVICE'

Flight Centre president Bill Blaauw immediately charged Victoria was being "done a disservice" by the Ottawa decision.

"Ours is the only airport in British Columbia with only one commercial firm, while there are four or five operating out of hole-in-the-wall facilities like Kamloops," said Blaauw, 31.

Flight Centre operates eight aircraft, ranging from two-seaters to six-seaters, and has an engine overhaul plant at the airport.

Blaauw claimed Victoria Flying Club had withdrawn its original objection to the application, and that Air West had objected after the closing date, leaving only one real opponent—the licensee, Victoria Flying Services.

VFS manager Al Collins said his firm, in operation here since 1959, is on solid ground in claiming there is not enough business here to support a second charter service.

"We know how many aircraft are needed here, and we've got them," Collins said.

The company operates 13 aircraft, including a new Cessna float plane delivered Monday.

On the question of monopoly, Collins said there already was effective competition for the Island's charter business because Air West was operating charter flights out of Victoria — in violation of charter laws.

Air West had applied to Ottawa a year ago for a charter licence and had been denied. The decision now is under appeal.

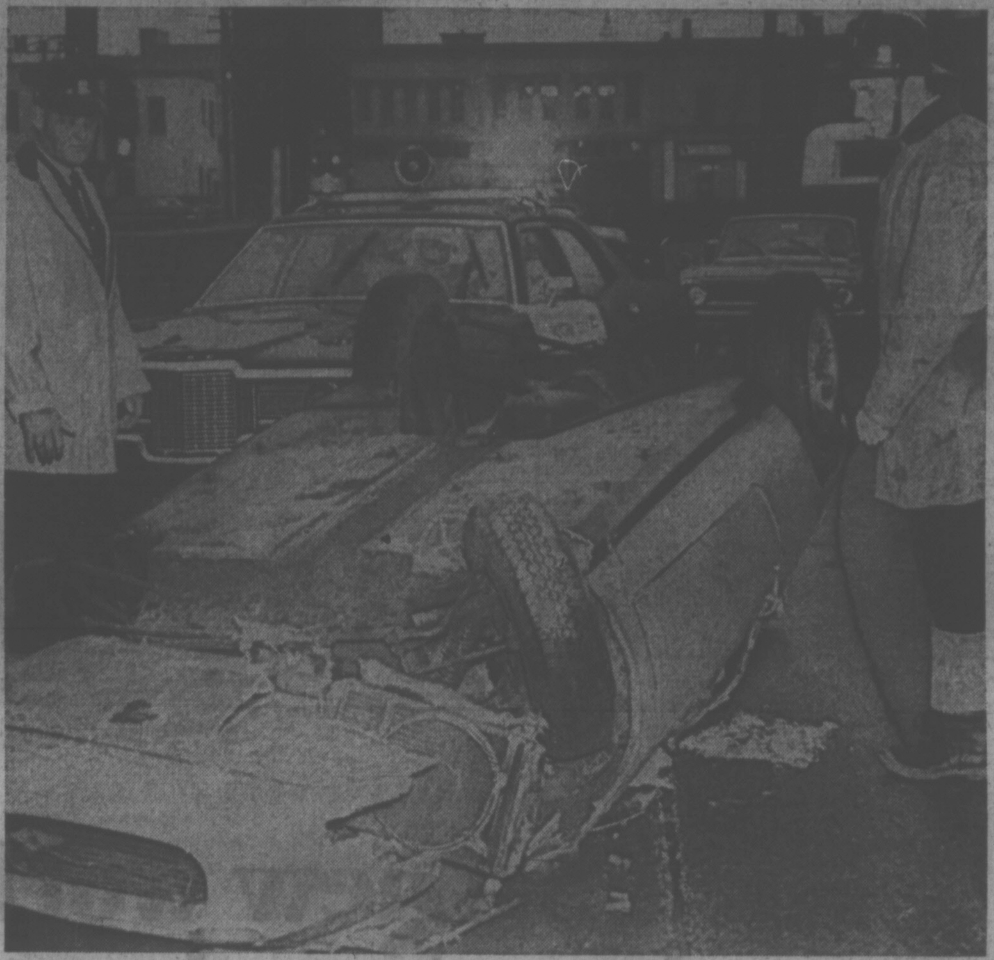
"Despite the commission's denial of their application, Air West continues to operate," Collins said. "They are not licensed. They are not complying with the law."

Air West president Norm Gold said in Vancouver he is convinced there is enough business to warrant a second charter service in Victoria.

"We were convinced of this need a year ago, when we applied for a licence," Gold said. "Then along came Flight Centre with their application; presumably after we had applied they began to think it was a good idea.

"Victoria is the only airport of this size that I know of that only has one charter service, but the second service should be supplied by us," Gold said.

Blaauw said Flight Centre's application would be appealed, as was Air West's. He will consult with his lawyers before filing the appeal.



JAMMED ACCELERATOR caused fibreglass bodied Lotus of Michael Walsh, 16, of HMCS Qu'Appelle, to flip this morning after ramming steel fencing at east end of Johnson Street bridge. FEDERAL AWARD of $5,000 was presented today to Richard Sewell of the Defence Research Estalishment Pacific in honor of his contribution to the fight against pollution. Sewell is the inventor of the "slick-licker" that played a major role in the cleanup of oil from the ill-fated tanker Arrow at Chedabucto Bay in Nova Scotia. The presentation was made here by Dr. Leon L'Heureux, chairman of the Defence Research Board, Ottawa.

Bus Fare Increase Discussed by Hydro

B.C. Hydro management discussed the possibility of a hike in bus fares to offset increasing deficits during a regular Monday morning meeting, chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum said today.

"Any final decision will have to come from the board of directors," Shrum said.

The board will meet later this month.

He said B.C. Hydro faces a further $3.2 million deficit beause of "this settlement" with the Amalgamated Transit Union which ended a 33-day strike Saturday.

★

The 1,800 transit division workers settled for a basic 14 per cent increase with certain benefits and bonuses bringing the total to 18.7 per cent over 27 months.

The settlement will boost their pay from $3.75 an hour to $4.35.

Shrum said B.C. Hydro management will "have to examine" all alternatives for reducing the deficit, which he said will be over and above a predicted $4.4 million deficit this year.

Wallace To Seek Strike End

Dr. Scott Wallace (SC—Oak Bay) served notice this morning he will call for action to settle the protracted strike at Sandringham Hospital when he addresses the legislature tonight.

Wallace, scheduled to speak first this evening at a likely 8 p.m. sitting, said he wants the "good offices" of the government used to help settle the strike.

"The point I am making is that I can't see why the government gives bargaining rights to a group such as the Sandringham workers and then there is no obligation on the part of the employer to negotiate in good faith or to bargain at all," said Wallace in an interview.

Refinery Closing May Lead To Oil Pollution Problem

The manager of Star Oil Refining Co. Ltd. said Monday he expects the company to close "because there's not enough oil in the area to keep us operating and making money."

And he predicted a serious pollution problem with the disposal of 10,000 gallons of used oil a month.

Allan Vanderkerkhove said he intends "shutting down in a few months." He said he has informed the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health, Capital Regional District and Pollution Control Board.

Star Oil picks up used oil at no charge from service stations and other places and recycles it into re-refined non-detergent oil which is then sold locally.

Vanderkerkhove expressed the fear that if there is nowhere to dispose of used oil, it will go down the sewers and pollute beaches and the sea.

ADMITS TO SMELL

He had been considering closure for a year. He said his company can buy re-refined oil in the United States and have it delivered here cheaper than recycling local used oil.

Asked about residents' complaints of a smell from the refinery, at 1651 Old Island Highway, he said "you just can't recycle oil and make it smell like roses. Sure there's a smell when you go by the refinery itself. I'll admit there's a refinery smell around the refinery."

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer, said there were some complaints several years ago and the situation was corrected then.

"An operation like that always will result in some fumes," he said.

Asked who had responsibility, he said: "We'd like some directive from someone." He suggested the complainant write to the Pollution Control Branch with a copy to him.

Ceremony to Launch Hospital Project

A brief sod-turning ceremony Wednesday at 2 p.m. will launch construction of a 300-bed addition to Gorge Road Hospital.

On hand will be Dr. Scott Wallace, Oak Bay MLA, and the man who proposed that the original project of 150 beds be doubled after it was found that a 150-bed unit planned for Royal Jubilee Hospital could not be built within provincial government cost limits.

Mrs. Irene Warren, chairman of the hospital's board, will turn the first sod. Among dignitaries on hand will be Donald Cox, deputy minister of hospital insurance, Hugh Curtis, chairman of the Capital regional board and Jim Cumming, who chairs the regional hospital board's meetings.

The Gorge project, to cost almost $4 million, will be ready for occupancy about the middle of next year. It will serve chronic care patients, mostly elderly people who are bed-ridden and require round-the-clock nursing.

Rites Wednesday For City Doctor

Funeral service for Dr. David Main Baillie, well-known Victoria physician, will be held in St. George's Church at Cadboro Bay at 2 p.m., Wednesday, not at St. John's Church as reported in Tuesday's Times.

Archbishop Harold Sexton, retired, will officiate.

Ask The Times

Q. What are the regulations regarding the use of rifles in the Colwood-Langford area?—R.J.D.

A. Provincial legislation forbids shooting of any kind in this area, whether on private property or not. RCMP officials also report that the Highlands district also has restrictions, only allowing the firing of shotguns that use SSG (ball) shot.

Family Units Losing Grip

The single-family house remains king in Saanich, but his crown is fading.

Statistics issued by the municipal planning department this week show the number of single-family houses built has declined from a peak of 533 in 1963 to 199 last year.

Over the eight-year period, 3,201 houses were built compared with 292 duplexes, 1,020 apartments and 261 units of senior citizen housing.

This gave houses 67.1 per cent of the total, followed by apartments at 21.3 per cent, duplexes at 6.1 per cent and senior citizens' housing at 5.5 per cent.

Municipal planner Tom Loney described the decline of the single-family house as "substantial." He called the growth in senior citizens' housing "remarkable."

The cost of single-family and duplex houses over this period has almost doubled while apartments have shown a much lower increase.

The average value of a house in 1963 was $13,836 and a one unit of a duplex, $10,272. An apartment unit was valued at $8,034.

By 1970, the house had increased to $23,039, one unit of a duplex to $18,866 and an apartment unit to $10,552.

Total Moon Eclipse Tonight

If the sky clears around midnight tonight, Victorians will see a total eclipse of the moon—when the moon enters the earth's penumbra.

Victoria Geophysical Observatory astronomers said the beginning of the total eclipse will take place at 11:03 p.m. and end at 12:26 a.m.

The moon will leave the umbra, the deeper shadow of the earth, at 1:37 a.m.

The weather office said the chance of the sky clearing in time for the eclipse is slim.

Arthur Mayse . . .

AS CONVINCED ISLANDERS, we cross to Vancouver no oftener than need be. After all, having broken away from mainland hurry-scurry why extend ourselves to return? But once in a while, Big Smoky on Burrard bags some attraction which Victoria is denied, and that we'd like to catch.

It happened so last weekend. A company of Noh actors on tour was to present Japanese classical theatre in a one-night stand at Vancouver's Queen Elizabeth. This would be the first such performance in North America.

We read what we could find on an art-form ancient when American Commodore Perry opened the forbidden islands to western influence. Then on Friday, we put our car on the Queen of Saanich, and watched these familiar shores dwindle down her wake.

It's a short crossing, and one for which we have adopted a standard drill.

First, lunch, which takes us nicely to the Active Pass approaches.

Next through the pass, hoping that no over-impetuous freighter will come bucketing around the dogleg in the wrong traffic lane. Then the open Gulf crossing, with the two coal-mountains of Roberts Bank looming larger until the amplified voice of Miss Dogwood shoos us down to the car deck.

So to Vancouver, where it sprawls with its prickling concrete towers under the cold gaze of mountains it doesn't deserve. With time to spare, we put in at the Nitobe gardens on the University of British Columbia fringe.

The gardens weren't officially open, but the gates were ajar, and a party of visiting Japanese was being shepherded along snow-bordered paths by a guide with a voice-horn.

These were the Noh players — a name often spelled without the "h." When we next saw them, they would be unfolding their stylized plays in the manner decreed by one of the world's most rigid theatrical conventions.

We arrived at the Queen Elizabeth in time to watch it fill. The set, which would remain unchanged from beginning to end, occupied only a portion of the stage. It too served the strict Noh tradition.

A Japanese pine, gnarled and green-tufted, was painted on its end wall. The single side wall carried a painting of bamboos. A bridge or gangway along which the actors would come and go led to a bare platform.

As Japanese theatre requires, we were to be given a set-piece comedy (Kyogen) followed by a Noh play, sombre and ghost-ridden, that the samurai rulers of fifteenth-century Japan once found to their taste.

First came the comedy. It was titled Boshibari, which translates as Tied to a Stick. A master sought to deal with two servants who were thieving his wine by tying their hands. They outwitted him, got drunk, and were driven from his house.

The acting was stylized and polished to the last degree, the story plain even without the help of our program notes.

It set us up for our adventure into Noh, from which we emerged with mixed feelings.

The play, centuries old, was Funa-Benkei, or Benkei in the Boat. A young nobleman in flight from his ill-intentioned brother takes ship with his loyal retainers after refusing his sweetheart's plea to accompany him. (The "girl" is a masked man — no women in Noh.) In a storm, the ghost of a slain enemy leader threatens him. Benkei, a warrior priest, confronts the ghost with Budhist incantations and drives it away.

In color and textile effect, the stiff, archaic costumes were fantastic. The pace, by Western standards, was slow to the point of tedium — so leisured, in fact, that the sudden stamping of a foot or pointing of a fan was startling as a thunderclap.

All this to dialogue moaned rather than spoken, and punctuated by an occasional drum-stroke, or notes evoked from a primitive flute.

Yet we soon became aware that a strong magic was being worked upon us. Even before the horned and wild-haired ghost intruded upon the scene, the play had gathered power.

It was good theater by gifted actors, and we came away from it feeling that we had been subjected to no ordinary experience.

I hope Victoria will one day be visited by a Noh company. But when that time comes, be warned. This is not drama as we know it, and you may sense much more in its stately progression than you are likely to understand.

Programs Planned for People

When I returned to Victoria seven years ago I was struck by an amazing lack here.

In my student years I'd participated as a sort of interne in a West End neighborhood house. Victoria, I found to my dismay, had none of these.

Let me tell you about the one I worked at. It was located in two old buildings that were once a girls' school. One building was devoted to kids. A day-care centre for pre-schoolers operated 8 to 6 p.m. Even babies were there, watched over by volunteer elderly ladies as well as the staff. After school or in the summer holidays, clubs for kids of both sexes and all ages were organized by qualified social group workers. I myself worked with 10 Grade Four girls every Tuesday and 12 Grade Five girls each Friday from 3:30 to 5 p.m.

Tuesday night I was just part of the fun when 35 Grade Seven girls and boyd danced, played ping-pong and basketball, and sat round and talked. Other days, other social workers had small groups of kids involved in such activities as cooking, child care, and pottery. It was a pretty busy place.

The other building was known as Senior House, here, during the day, some 20 to 40 elderly members arranged their own program, including carpet lawn bowling, sing-songs, and field trips. At night single parents' groups and working women met for socials or lectures.

These groups were self-governed, and ran their own activities. There were caseworkers available to discuss particular problems the members might come up with. But the programs were not for "problem people." Just for the people of the district.

We got to know our community very well, to learn what the kids were doing and what they wanted to do, and we learned to modify the programs of the place to meet the changing needs of the nieghborhood. That's what made it, in the tradition of the 1900 Chicago Hull House, truly a Neighborhood House.

Can't you see something like this being perfect for James Bay?

Dear Readers,

I am often asked for suggestions for ways of using lef-over yarns.

A pillow made of colorful pompoms would be delightful in a child's room or playroom. If you have a pillow that has become faded or worn, you can give it a new lease on life.

Cover any shape pillow with small pompoms about 1½ inch in diameter, arranging them in circles of different colors or rows of different colors, attaching each pompom with its "tie yarn."

If you have a variety of colors in small pieces, you can make each pompom work as follows: Cut 2 circles of cardboard, about 1½ inches across. Cut a ½-inch round hole in centre of each circle. Hold both circles together.

Using about three strands of yarn threaded into a yarn needle, each strand about 60 inches long, wrap yarn through hole and over rims of circles until centre is tightly packed.

Clip strands around the edge and insert a length of yarn about 10 inches long, between the circles. Tie tightly and remove the cardboards. Shake the pompom and trim evenly. For a larger pompom, use a larger cardboard. Be sure that the "tie ends" are long enough to thread into a needle and sew to the pillow.

Research Proves Kindergartens Improve Mental Development

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — Margaret Wettlauffer says a junior kindergarten is no babysitting operation.

"We're fighting the public on the idea that it is a babysitting thing. The downtown children need it desperately. The others need it too."

Miss Wettlauffer is director of kindergartens for the Toronto board of education. As such, she is in charge of the junior kindergartens attended by about 3,000 four-year-olds. Most of them are in poor downtown neighborhoods.

The Toronto program has been operating since 1942. Miss Wettlauffer says interest in such work has boomed in recent years as research has convinced experts the greatest part of a child's mental development takes place in his pre-school and early school years.

It is believed now a child does 50 per cent of his mental growing before he is four years old, about 30 per cent more from then until he is eight and the rest after that.

"I don't know that I will see it in my working lifetime, but my guess is they'll some day spend more money on early childhood training than on the teens."

Her department now gets $700 per child—about half the amount budgeted for high school students. There has been talk of cutting Ontario's education spending, and junior kindergartens have been among the items mentioned as dispensable.

When Miss Wettlauffer talks about how her classrooms work, she begins with the department's philosophy, a blend of theories based on research on the education of young children.

Broadly, it is that all children go through similar development patterns, but not at the same pace. There can be great differences in development among four-year olds. The classrooms are organized to provide a range of activites that allow a trained teacher to encourage the children to make the most of their stages of development and move ahead when they are ready.

"Children playing with blocks are not just children playing with blocks. Teachers should be aware of where the children are going with the blocks.

"They can use them to learn how to work with another child.

"Then you put props in with the blocks. If you put in cars, children will build a garage or begin to sort the cars and put all the green ones in this garage. They are relating to the world—it is a new form of language for them—but it won't happen without someone doing something about it.

"You can add the abstract element by adding signs. They see signs, they see writing in relationship to what they're doing, so it makes sense to them.

"The downtown kids are sometimes not at the pictorial stage. They don't relate a picture of an orange to the real thing. They don't have the concepts. When I see a picture of a cow, I draw up a tremendous store of experience to interpret it."

Through all the activities, teachers ask children to explain what they are doing, to describe the things they are playing with.

"Language is one of the chief things we're after—the oral and listening skills plus reading and writing.

"The program must provide for the range of kids, and the teacher must be aware of pacing the child toward the best.

"In some cases the children are not physiologically ready to take the next step. Their nervous systems are not up to it.

"We have six-year-olds who need the basics and we try to force them at Grade 1 pace. No two kids are the same, but what do we do? What have we done? We expect all the kids to be the same."

Miss Wettlauffer says parents sometimes compound the problems by insisting their child do everything at the pace of the most advanced children.

"It's one thing to be able to count to five, but you have to know what it means. That's what parents don't seem to understand."

MARIE G. LETARTE

ST. VINCENT DE PAUL

International Official Here

Mme. Marie G. Letarte, vice-president of the International Council of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, located in Paris, France, arrived in Victoria Sunday on a tour of the West Coast.

Mme. Letarte, from Quebec, is responsible for the entire Western Hemisphere. Last year her travels took her to Central and South America.

She met Monday with Bishop Remi De Roo to discuss the problems and work of the societies in British Columbia.

The world-wide society developed from the work of a young Parisian student who founded a brotherhood of laymen to assist the poor through personal contact in 1833.

Then as now the members found that charity is inseparable from justice. They have always attempted to obtain justice of the poor.

Mme. Letarte believes that the society must change to keep up with a changing world. She feels that the society's traditional donations of food and clothing in emergencies is still needed but that such assistance is only a temporary help.

She would like to see the societies provide counselling in close collaboration with social workers.

Opera Star Loves Playing Male Roles

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

Rosalind Elias is everyone's dream prima donna. With a face and figure that remind one of Sophia Loren, she has the voice of an angel. As she happens to be a mezzo-soprano, and opera is full of mezzo parts which are boys, Miss Elias probably wears pants more frequently on stage than most other singers.

"I love those parts," said the brunette star, as we sat in her New York apartment overlooking the Hudson River. "They're all eighteen or nineteenth century, so I get to wear the most elegant clothes."

With a pair of opera's shapeliest legs, she is always a sensation in such costumes as the satin knee breeches of Octavian in "Dear Rosenkavalier." The costume is her own, too, as she follows the practice of the oldtime opera stars, who always had their costumes made especially for them.

"Rise Stevens had every single one of her costumes made for her," Miss Elias recalled with something like envy. "It was she who advised me to do so, although many singers today use the costumes created for the opera houses. She was my inspiration. When I was a kid going to operas in Boston, I once cought the ring she threw at Don Jose in 'Carmen,' because it accidentally went over the footlights. They made me give it back, I'm sorry to say!"

Rosalind Elias is smaller in real life than she looks onstage. She was wearing a hostess gown in a green and purple Persian-type print, creating a striking effect against the white, black, chrome and glass of her new apartment.

"I'm a great window shopper, and I love kooky lounging things from the boutiques. Maybe it's the Leganese in me, because my favorite opera for costumes is 'Carmen.' That gypsy stuff, you know. Of course, it looks right in fashion just now."

Miss Elias' pioneering taste in clothes is part of her personality, as she is noted for singing new roles. She has just done the name part in the first performance ever given in New York of Handel's "Orlando," and will be seen on CBS-TV around Easter in "And David Wept," a new work by Ezra Laderman.

"For the Orlando I had a marvelous costume, trousers and tunic in emerald velvet, an emerald brocade vest with jeweled borders and a gold poet's shirt. A Grecian-styled wig, too."

Miss Elias is used to wigs, uses lots of them in private life. She was wearing one, in fact, during our interview.

"I do have a designer for my concert gowns, Jose Varona. For myself, I don't stick to any one designer, but I like Bellicano for dressy things and Geoffrey Beene for day clothes."

We talked about concert dressing, and I mentioned the attention which the late Lily Pons always gave to her concert clothes. She would change as many as four times during a concert.

"Yes, I like to change," Miss Elias said. "I usually program my concerts with the first half very artistic, the second half more familiar things. So I'll wear what I call a statuesque gown for the first half, something more flowing and easy for the second. A singer's dress should express what she is going to do."

Miss Elias has been doubtful about wearing the midi, as she thinks her 5'4" height may be too short for it.

"I'm sticking with maxi length or pants for now. But I'm not saying I won't change. I just wait when I'm doubtful about something."

One thing she has always worn is massive Middle Eastern handcrafted jewelry, both in private life and in concert.

"I was ethnic long before the trend," said the dark-eyed soprano. "I simply thought the things were beautiful. They always will be, too."

Rosalind Elias, a leading mezzo-soprano with the Metropolitan Opera, models her favorite black lace evening gown.

THE WEATHER

A slow moving Pacific weather system off the B.C. coast spread rain and gales over the Queen Charlotte Islands overnight. Cloudiness preceding this disturbance ,moved slowly across the south coast and kept early morning temperatures milder than Monday's. Inland areas remained generally clear, however, and the mercury dipped to three below at Blue River and to six below at Burns Lake.

Rain spread over the west and north coast of Vancouver Island shortly after midnight. Skies in the Cariboo clouded over this morning in advance of the Pacific disturbance. Occasional snow will reach the central interior this afternoon.

A weak ridge of high pressure kept skies sunny in the southern interior today. However, cloud will move across that region this evening. Temperatures will be milder in nearly all areas of the province Wednesday.

Metro Man To Speak

Metro government authority Elswood Bole, of Winnipeg, will describe some of the unforeseen difficulties of urban amalgamation in a speech to Victoria Chamber of Commerce Wednesday noon in the Empress Hotel.

The ex-mayor of suburban St. Vital, Bole was chairman of the exploratory sub-committee on the organization of local government services in Greater Winnipeg, 1953-54, and became executive director of the Metropolitan Corporation of Greater Winnipeg.

Last year he spoke to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce annual meeting in Vancouver on a decade of change and the effect on cities.

Bole, a Winnipeg-born businessman, was chairman of Greater Winnipeg Transit Commission from 1953-59, and of the Manitoba advisory committee to the minister of municipal affairs.

Test Station Closes

The provincial motor-vehicle testing station at 1400 McKenzie will take a maintenance break Feb. 15-26. The closure is officially called semi-annual preventive maintenance.

FIRM SCIENTIFIC KNOWLEDGE ON EFFECTS LACKING

Marijuana—Drug of Extremes and Puzzles

By WILLIAM GREIDER

WASHINGTON (WP) — A potent dose of marijuana can induce acute pyschosis in some people, yet it is a mild drug that some day may be used to ease the pain of cancer victims or relax the convulsions of epileptics.

Between those extremes of positive and negative qualities, the National Institute of Mental Health reported Monday that there are still too many unanswered questions remaining to render a final verdict on canabis sativa, better known as pot or grass.

In the meantime, NIMH presented Congress with its first annual report on the weed, a comprehensive summary of all that science knows or suspects about the drug's effect on people.

For the short term, said Dr. Bertram S. Brown, a NINH director, "general deleterious effects are minnmal" for most casual users.

"But," he warned, "we do not yet have firm scientific knowledge about the effects of a long-term chronic usage. Until we know more about the drug, we certainly cannot give it a clean bill of health."

Research Results Conflicting

Marijuana smoking is still spreading in popularity, according to surveys cited by the NIMH report. In a 1970 check of college campuses, fully 31 per cent of the students said they have experimented with it at least once. One of every seven college students uses it regularly, once a week or more frequently, the report said.

Dr. Brown speculated that a decline may lie ahead, based on recent studies in California high schools. Since the west coast has generally led the rest of the country in drug usage, he said, it may be significant that a study of San Mateo County schools showed that increase usage is slowing down among high school students — and usage is actually decreasing at the junior high level.

In terms of marijuana's effect, the report's description of a typical "high" by a moderate social smoker notes:

"The acute mental effects of the intoxication, including a variety of perceptual alterations, short-term memory loss, time disorientation, and detoxic reactions by many, are frequently desired by the user."

In a limited number of unpredictable cases, however, these desired results "sometimes progress to acute anxiety attacks and even acute psychoses in some cases," the study said.

While the psychosis is not usually a permanent condition, Dr. Brown said it appears "to be more likely in those who have previously had a marginal psychological adjustment especially in the presence of excessive stress."

Ironically, he noted, the "panic reaction" and sometimes psychosis is more likely to afflict the first-time user who is inexperienced and consumes too much. The chronic smoker, he said, usually smokes to the point where he achieves "a high which is pleasurable," then stops, avoiding an overdose.

On the positive side of pot, the NIMH scientists said drug companies are already at work developing therapeutic uses for ingredients extracted from cannabis. Dr. Brown forsees its application to reduce pain for cancer patients, to treat high blood pressure, and to relax the central nervous system in epilepsy.

Use Of Drug Spreading

The NIMH report notes that marijuana has been used to treat various ailments since ancient times and only passed out of general medical use at the end of the 19th century when new synthetic drugs with more easily controlled potency became available.

Regarding the long-term health consequences from smoking it, the report noted that there is no scientific evidence available linking marijuana to cancer or birth defects. But it warned that pot smokers should not take too much comfort from that statement.

Research on animals has produced conflicting results—with deformed offspring in some animals. And it was only after decades of heavy tobacco consumption by the general public that scientists could establish a statistical link between cigarette smoking and cancer, the report said.

The report also summarizes scientific data on the old debate between alcohol and marijuana, but NIMH declines to draw any conclusion about which is worse — only that they are similar when taken in moderate doses.

"Both produced decreased activity, euphoria and sleepiness, and decreased performance on psychometric tests," according to one laboratory comparison, "Marijuana led to moderate overestimation of time while alcohol produced grossly exaggerated underestimation of time . . . hunger and food consumption were increased by marijuana and decreased by alcohol."

The NIMH summary discards the long-held notion that marijuana is addictive or that it leads progressively to other stronger drugs. On the other hand, it notes that a moderate to heavy user of marijuana is more likely to be taking something stronger as well.

Much more research is needed to explore the long-term effects, Brown said, and $3 million in the NIMH budget this year is earmarked for cannabis.

"Even if it is eventually established that moderate usage is not injurious to physical health," Brown warned, "a nagging question would remain: do we want to encourage the use of a mind-altering drug, which, for so many, is an escape from reality and a retreat into passive enjoyment?"

Cadet Choir Seeks No. 6s

Former members of the Royal Canadian Navy are being asked to hustle through their attics in search of any "No. 6s" they may have stowed away in mothballs.

The Victoria branch of the Navy League of Canada said today a Rainbow choir is being organized from members of the Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps and the Admiral Rayner Navy League Cadet Corps.

They hope to kit the choir members out in No. 6s, the white dress uniforms worn by the RCN when serving in the tropics.

Concentrating on sea shanties, the choir will sing at a variety of events, and it is hoped, take part in the sunset ceremonies put on by the corps at the Legislative Buildings during the summer.

Those who have uniforms to donate should write the Navy League at P.O. Box 12 or phone Ron Nutter.

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

PSALM 23.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BRAIDWOOD—In memory of Kathleen R. Braidwood who passed away on Feb. 8, 1970.

One year has passed since that sad day,
When the one we loved was called away;
God took her home, it was His will;
Within our hearts she liveth still.
—Lovingly remembered by her children Randy, Roddy, Russ, Maureen, Gerry and Sandra, also sister Lil.

SMITH—In loving memory of our mother and grandmother, Mrs. Gertrude N. Smith, who passed away, February 8, 1970

"In our hearts your memory lingers
Always tender fond and true
There's not a day dear mother
We do not think of you."
—The Family.

WHITFORD—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Lloyd, who passed away suddenly Feb. 9, 1970.

Like falling snow the days drift by,
But precious memories never die;
You live with us in memory still,
Not just today, but you always will.
One year ago we had to part
With one we loved with all our hearts.
The wound is deep, it will not heal;
Only those who have lost know how we feel.
Please God, forgive a silent tear,
Our silent wish that he were here.
Others are taken, yes, we know,
But he was ours and we miss him so.
Treasure him, Lord, in Your garden of rest.
For here on earth he was one of the best.
—Always remembered and sadly missed by Jean and children.

WHITFORD—In loving memory of our dear son-in-law, who passed away Feb. 9, 1970.

"Little we knew, when we woke that morn,
The sorrow the day would bring.
The call was sudden, the shock severe,
To part with one we loved so dear."
—Sadly missed by Mom and Dad George.

★ ★ ★

THE BEVERLY HILLBILLIES, 7:30 p.m., Channel 7. The world has a way of catching up with television, even with the Beverly Hillbillies. Tonight, women's liberation raises its curly head as Granny and Jane Hathaway disguise themselves as Japanese servant girls and raid the Clampett mansion in the cause of female rights.

★ ★ ★

IT COULDN'T BE DONE, 8 p.m., Channel 5 (rerun). Lee Marvin and the 5th Dimension salute the men who created such impossible projects as Mount Rushmore, the Golden Gate Bridge, the Panama Canal, the Hoover Dam, the Holland Tunnel and the Empire State Building. It's fine family entertainment and, since the program was first shown last April, it has been distributed by the United State Information Agency to more than 150 countries.

If Apollo 14 mission has been successfully completed, all channels may interrupt regular programming for wrapup coverage.

★ ★ ★

RED SKELTON, 8 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Martha Raye is the guest star tonight, playing George Appleby's wife Clara in The Garage Sale. Appleby sells the old guitar in which she's been hiding her life savings . . . then the fun begins.

★ ★ ★

TELESCOPE, 8:30 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Queen of the Atlantic. Series host Ken Cavenagh and his wife were passengers on a recent voyage of the new liner Queen Elizabeth II from New York to Southampton. This program records the voyage on film and Cavanagh compares it with a similar voyage aboard the original Queen Elizabeth, which is no longer in service.

★ ★ ★

TUESDAY NIGHT AT THE MOVIES, 9 p.m., Channel 5. "The Producers" (1968). Written and directed by Mel Brooks, and strictly for Mel Brooks fans. Starring Zero Mostel, Gene Wilder and Dick Shawn. Mostel plays a down-on-his luck Broadway producer who talks a mild-mannered accountant (Wilder) into a scheme to make money on a sure-fire, over-financed flop.

★ ★ ★

STAND UP AND CHEER, 10 p.m., Channel 4. An hour of music starring Pearl Bailey, Henry Fonda, Johnny Mann and his singers and orchestra. Highlights of the show include the sounds of the Roaring 20s, the big bands of the 40s, a salute to the armed forces and a tribute to the late President Kennedy. Among the songs are many old and many new: "This Is My Country," "Proud Mary," "She's a Grand Old Flag," "Mrs. Robinson," "Yankee Doodle Dandy," "Gentle on My Mind," "Dixie," "Stardust," "Sunny Side of the Street" and "Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head."

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

As many people doubtlessly know, there is considerable evidence to show that if a woman has had her breast removed for cancer that has spread perhaps to some of the glands in her armpit, she can get a better chance of survival by having her ovaries removed. There is evidence also that sometimes radiation from one of the new very powerful X-ray machines will work a miraculous cure. A few of the doctors who use these rays say that sometimes the rays along, without an operation, can cure cancer of the breast.

Some doctors say that if removal of the ovaries does not help, removal of the powerful adrenal glands situated just above each kidney will help, and some surgeons remove the pituitary gland at the base of the brain.

What is sad is that so many women, when they find a lump in their breast, just cannot face the possibility of losing a breast. Perhaps they fear that with this they will have lost their sexual attractiveness.

* * *

I just received a letter from Dr. Max Cutler, a fine surgeon in Beverly Hills, California, who has spent his life studying cancer of the breast. Right now Dr. Cutler is on his way to Moscow and Helsinki to see what results surgeons are getting in other countries in operating on women with cancer of the breast.

Dr. Cutler wishes that more surgeons would remove only the lump in the breast whenu it is small and has not scattered into the armpit. Perhaps also a woman's breast might be left when a highly malignant type of cancer has already scattered. Then only radiation might be used, especially in young women.

Dr. Cutler tells me of a Dr. Rissanen in Helsinki, Finland, who treated 415 breast cancers with only surgical removal of the lump and then radiotherapy. He has 70 per cent of 10-year survivals, which is a very good record. In all these cases, the cancer was small and had not scattered into the nodes in the armpit. Dr. Cutler says that he feels that this is by far the most important series of cases in the world's literature on this subject.

* * *

Through the years a few other surgeons like Dr. Crile of Cleveland, have been wondering if many breast cancers could be removed without mutilation of the unhappy woman, and a few have tried to get by with only very powerful radiation.

Some of the most unhappy women I have seen in my long years of practice were those who, after they had had their breast removed, together with the lymph glands in the armpit, got a badly swollen arm, full of lymph (the milky fluid that nourishes the body cells) that could not flow through the body properly.

Dr. Noel Thompson, of Northwood England, recently wrote an encouraging article in which he said that he is greatly helping these women with a swollen arm by turning a flap of skin into the armpit, and this enables the lymph to be carried away satisfactorily.

PHONE BILL JUMP TO BE 15 PER CENT

An increase in B.C. Telephone Co. rates would boost Greater Victoria school district's phone bill by $9,200 or 15 per cent, Trustee Peter Bunn told a meeting of the finance and legal committee Monday.

Under current rates the estimated bill for the year is $61,900. The proposed increase would bring the cost of phones up to about $77,200.

Last year phones cost the district $55,666.

GURAY SENTENCED

Judge Critical Of Witnesses

The first hint of a motive in the Nov. 7 shooting death of a visiting Sikh was aired in B.C. Supreme Court Monday when Sewa Singh Guray was sentenced to four years and nine months in prison for manslaughter.

Guray, 38, of 1292 Denman, had been charged with murder in the slaying of Hardev Singh Gill, 29, of New Westminster. Guray was found guilty of the lesser crime of manslaughter by a jury Jan. 15.

Before passing sentence Monday, Mr. Justice J. G. Gould considered a pre-sentence report in which a probation officer indicated Guray may have thought he was shooting in self-defence when he killed Gill.

"If he hadn't grabbed me by the neck, I wouldn't have shot him," Guray was quoted as saying. "If he had left me alone, I wouldn't be in jail now and all this wouldn't have happened.

JUDGE CRITICAL

Gould was critical of three witnesses who were in a car parked near Guray's home with the accused and Gill minutes before the shooting. They were the driver, Mrs. Kartur Kour Basi, insurance agent Subash Sharma and Manohar Lal Rajput, 18, a visitor from India.

Mrs. Basi was still in the vehicle when Guray poked a pistol through a window and shot Gill three times.

"There are facts in this case which the witnesses did not see fit to bring forward to me or the jury," Gould said. "At least three could have done so," particularly concerning the conversation between Gill and Guray when all five had been sitting in the car drinking scotch from paper cups before the shooting.

Gould said he was satisfied the accused was unable to form the intent to kill Gill, either because of emotional instability or because he had consumed pills and liquor. This had been the key contention of defence lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood.

Gould said he was imposing a relatively light sentence because Guray had not adapted to the social standards of Canada, although he had lived in this country 11 years.

"He is physically a resident of Canada, but in his culture and mores he is untransferred from India. If he were of a Canadian background the proper sentence would be eight years.

"Under the circumstances, the court proposes to sentence him to considerably less than eight years."

He rejected the view of Prosecutor Kenneth Murphy that the pre-sentence report showed, by suggesting a motive, that Guray had formed an intent to kill and showed no signs of remorse for the crime.

LACKING INTENT

Gould supported the jury's decision that there had been no intent. He also noted the accused had no previous record and had already been in prison three months. Guray, in fact, was "the classic example of the hard-working immigrant."

Murphy had suggested Guray's statement to the probation officer showed the accused was "not sorry and blames Gill. This can't be considered as lacking intent.

"The sentence, in addition to being a deterrent to others, must also be a deterrent to Guray," Murphy said. "There is no assurance that this sort of thing won't happen again."

UNBALANCED

Owen-Flood said the accused's self-defence statement only substantiated his claim that Guray was unbalanced at the time of the shooting, either because of emotional instability or the pills and liquor he had taken.

Guray, illiterate in both his native Punjabi and English, sat impassively through his five-day trial and appeared unmoved when the sentence was interpreted into Punjabi for him.

Gould noted that the accused's inability to communicate would make prison difficult for him, but "he'll be able to learn English there," Gould said.

Police Court

Three men who ordered a meal and drinks at a local restaurant earlier in the month and walked out without paying were each fined $35 in court Monday by Judge William Ostler.

Aubrey A. Nobbs, 41, no fixed address; James W. Murphy, 33, no fixed address, and John J. Hannay, 23, of 1131 Balmoral, were charged with obtaining food by fraud.

They received food and beverages worth $14.55 from Don Mee's Restaurant, 538 Fisgard, Feb. 3.

His licence was suspended for six months except for business purposes.

A 23-year-old man serving a five-year term for robbery appeared in Victoria provincial court Monday on a two-count charge of escaping custody and being unlawfully at large.

Richard William Lum was serving his sentence at the William Head minimum security prison and was due to be released in November, 1973.

Judge William Ostler remanded Lum to Wednesday for election of trial method.

Prison officials said a prisoner walked away from the prison between 8:30 p.m. and midnight Friday.

A prison correctional officer driving his car over the Point Ellice Bridge about 10 a.m. Saturday spotted the man, stopped and took him to the police station.

BUSHEY, England — Roger Bourne, all 224 pounds of him, chose a good place to fall through the floor as he danced in an upstairs ballroom recently. He fell into a room full of 50 St. John Ambulance men attending an annual party. The doctors patched Roger up and then revived three women upstairs who fainted when Roger disappeared through the floor.

BOSTON — Senator Edward M. Kennedy has received a new driver's licence to replace the permit that was revoked for one year after a July, 1969, accident on Chappaquiddick Island which claimed the life of Washington secretary Mary Jo Kopechne.

VANCOUVER, Wash. — Sunday was a bad day for Charles Niebuhr, 19. He drove his car into line for a coin-operated auto wash and found he didn't have a dime. So he asked a young couple in the car ahead for change. Mary Ann Davis, 19, took one look at Niebuhr and told her husband, John, that she recognized Niebuhr as the youth who robbed her of $1,800 at knifepoint in a Vancouver laundromat Dec. 13. Niebuhr fled but Davis chased him and held him until officers made the arrest. Niebuhr was charged with armed robbery, possession of dangerous drugs and being AWOL from the army.

WAKEFIELD, England — Mohammed Shah rang the doorbell recently at Wakefield top security jail and asked to be given his old cell back. Shah had just hitchhiked 200 miles from Lehyill open prison, where he had been transferred as a model prisoner after serving two years of a five-year sentence for fraud. He said he wanted to resume an accountancy course he was taking at Wakefield and wanted to be near his wife.

NEW YORK — A cleaning woman at Radio City Music Hall dismantled an incendiary bomb single-handedly early today and then continued on working. Mrs. Marie Hurst noticed the device inside a ripped cushion in the theatre, dismantled it and reported it later to her supervisor.

Disparity Discussions Tabled

The legislature Monday moved unanimously to table all correspondence between British Columbia and the federal government about applications for regional disparity programs for northern B.C. and northern Vancouver Island.

The motion was introduced by Dean Smith (SC-North Peace River). Smith said federal aid will be required for these areas, because so many "instant towns" have sprung up.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell told the house he has sent a telegram to Regional Economic Expansion Minister Jean Marchand asking his permission to table the correspondence.

Travellers' Head Visiting City This Week

School Tender Accepted

Saanich Peninsula school board has accepted a $79,000 tender from Victoria contractor H. E. Fowler to build a fourth classroom activity room and library at the 99-student Durrance Road Elementary.

A covered walkway and play area will be included.

The school was used by superintendent Cory Holob to illustrate the new 33-to-1 pupil-to-teacher ratio approved at a board meeting Monday night to facilitate budget cuts.

"This is not as bad as it appears on paper," he told the board.

"Durrance school with 99 pupils has three teachers at present but if just two more students come along it will get another teacher making the ration 25-to-1."

Approval of the pupil-teacher ratio is really a "staffing tool" and does not include remedial kindergarten or library teaching areas, Holob said.

Mother, 2 Children Dead

WINNIPEG (CP) — A father returned home from work Monday to be met by his eight-year-old daughter, bleeding from a gunshot wound in her upper arm.

Inside his home he found his wife and two children dead, and two other children wounded.

Police said Emma Park, 32, apparently shot the children and then turned the gun on herself. A .22-calibre semi-automatic rifle was found near her body.

Allen Park, a 33-year-old hydro-electric employee, had been away at work since 7 a.m. and returned home shortly before 5 p.m.

Eight-year-old Darryl, who met him at the door, was in good condition today in Children's Hospital.

In serious condition and under intensive care were three-year-old Dianne Sheryl, shot in the shoulder, and infant Dione Tracy, three months, wounded in the chest.

Dead were nine-year-old Darlene Gail and six-year-old Darcy Karen.

The Parks occupied a lower duplex in northeast Winnipeg, where neighbors heard no shots during the day and had no inkling that anything was amiss.

"I was shocked and couldn't believe it when I heard it on the radio," said Mrs. D. G. Turenne who lives nearby.

She described Mrs. Park as "a nice, ordinary woman" who said "she was happy with the girls and they never gave her any trouble."

An autopsy and inquest were ordered.

DRIVERS SIGN 25-MONTH PACT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Teamsters Union drivers will receive average increases of 98 cents an hour in a new 25-month contract negotiated with the Construction Labor Relations Association of British Columbia.

A Teamster spokesman said Monday night that membership had voted 92 per cent in favor of accepting the contract. It will bring the average hourly wage to $5.40 as of Oct. 1 this year.

The 25-month pact dates back to March 1, 1970. The wage increases are in four steps, the first one retroactive to last June 1.

Some 2,000 Teamster members are affected. The CLRA represents 665 employers.

Only the tunnel and rock workers remain without a contract with the CLRA.

Meanwhile, the CLRA announced Monday it has negotiated the first of 40 labor contracts it will be dealing with this year. First agreement is with the 200-member Refrigeration Service and Installation Workers Union, local 516, with a settlement of 9.3 per cent over two years. Hourly rate will be $6.56 by 1973.

Committee Favors Television in House

OTTAWA (CP) — A Commons committee studying proposals for televising procedures of the House and committees appears ready to recommend implementation of such coverage if some technical and financial problems can be settled.

Recent interviews with 10 of the 12 committee members further indicated that a full report on the issue, including recommendations, is likely to be issued early in April.

Only two of those interviewed expressed outright opposition to the principle of televising Commons business: Paul St. Pierre (L—Coast-Chilcotin) and Ambrose Peddle (PC—Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador).

The others not only endorsed the proposal in general terms but also expressed a fair degree of confidence that the technical problems involved can be overcome at a reasonable cost.

OPPOSE NETWORK ROLE

All those who supported TV of the Commons and committees based their remarks on the assumption that the operation would be controlled by the Commons and the service sold, leased or given to the existing TV networks for distribution.

All committee members interviewed strongly opposed suggestions that the publicly-owned CBC or the private CTV network be permitted to carry out the televising.

The reason most often given was that private cameramen, producers and directors would tend to concentrate on embarrassing or funny moments and overlook the "real meaning" of Commons business.

The strongest influence so far on the committee appears to have been a recent visit by some committee members to the United Nations in New York.

Grant Deachman (L—Vancouver Quadra) said the UN method of operating its own TV service and selling film to the networks seems to have worked exceptionally well.

The committee has asked a number of UN TV personnel to assess the technical difficulties involved in introducing a similar system here.

The committee also will travel to Washington this winter to study the methods used there to cover congressional business.

Committee chairman Gordon Blair (L—Grenville-Carleton) said he hopes to have the TV question settled and a report tabled before the Commons takes an Easter break early in April.

He declined to take a personal stand on the TV issue, saying he has no firm indication on how co-operative individual committee members will be when it comes to drafting a report.

Mr. St. Pierre and Mr. Peddle had widely different reasons for opposing the use of TV in the House and committees.

Mr. St. Pierre said he objects because of problems that could arise from misrepresentation by cameramen, poor editing and a variety of other dangers which might harm the dignity of Parliament over the long run. Mr. St. Pierre is a former newspaper man.

Mr. Peddle said he could not approve expenditures of large sums of money to install TV in the Parliament buildings while a number of areas in Canada still could not afford any TV service at all.

FAVORS PRINCIPLE

John Reid (L—Kenora-Rainy River), head of the Commons broadcasting committee, said he favors the principle of TV in the House but he wanted answers to many specific questions before venturing approval.

"The camera can be the biggest liar of all because it may present only part of a picture and claim to be representing the whole situation," he said.

Mr. Reid said problems of control, lighting, cost and distribution must be solved before the committee can recommend use of TV in the Commons.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax-East Hants), a former broadcaster, said it would probably cost between $1 and $2 million to install TV facilities in the Commons and some committee rooms. It could also mean drastic changes in the Parliament buildings to enable installation of facilities.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said there should be no question about the value of TV coverage of Commons business. "It means more information and we need that."

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles." It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

HOME GARDEN

Wild Berries a la Baron

By HILDA BEASTALL

The flavor and aroma of sun-ripened wild strawberries is well on the way to becoming a memory to city dwellers; yet if you have a garden plot or a balcony planter you may grow reasonable facsimile.

A warm border or plant box, a good compost-filled soil and you can be picking fruits about the first of August this year from plants you raise yourself.

Hilda

This wild-flavored strawberry is the everbearing Baron Solemacher, a so-called alpine strawberry with red fruits about twice the size of the wild ones we used to find on sunny hilltops near Victoria.

The aroma and flavor when the fruits are ripe are equal to the wild. We first grew Baron Solemacher while we were finding the tiny wild ones and so could compare the two.

The plants will last for about three years, when either new ones must be raised from seed or the best fruiting plants divided and replanted into a freshly composted area.

These alpine strawberries have no runners, are compact—reaching about 10 inches across by the third year—and no more than eight of nine inches in height.

Fruits are prolific, borne on slender upright stems away from the soil, making them easy to pick.

Occasionally, in contrast to the bright red fruits, a plant or two will be found bearing albino fruits. These are honey-colored when fully ripe. You will like the flavor though it is quite distinct from the red.

Texture of both the red and the white alpines is on the dry side, not squashy and juicy like the cultivated varieties. They are delicious if picked and kept in a warm place for an hour or two to become fully ripe.

Sugar spoils any ripe fruit, so try them crushed and enjoyed with a little sour cream or yogurt. A few grains of sugar added to the cream instead of to the fruit may be just right for your taste.

Baron Solemacher alpine strawberry seed is listed in several catalogues.

Sow it indoors by February 15, prick out into flats and grow the plants in a coldframe until early May when you can transplant to the garden.

Put out all the plants, leaving a foot between them in each direction. By late September you'll be able to discard the poor ones. And you'll likely have enough good plants to supply a balcony friend. Fruiting will be from late June until frost.

The plants are quite hardy, needing only a humusy soil and enough watering at the roots during our dry summers.

Some Banana

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Winnipeg shopper got more than he bargained for when he picked up a bunch of bananas on sale at a suburban grocery store. Perched on one of the bananas as comfortably as it might at home in South America was a king-size tarantula. Doug Arnold dropped the bananas on a counter when he saw the insect and it fell to the floor. Together with the store manager Arnold cornered the fleeing spider and forced it into a jar. The spider now lives a comfortable life in an incubator at the University of Manitoba.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

I imagine that the reader, after observing what happened in the deal diagrammed today, will find it rather difficult to believe that it was played in the 1970 World Championships. But the fact is that it was, in the match between Norway and the United States. Sitting North-South was the United States team. The Norwegian team was occupying the East-West seats.

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	2 ♣
Pass	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♣.

Before the reader points out that it was not East's turn to lead, let me state that East did lead the four of clubs—out of turn! According to law, declarer now had no fewer than four options available to him, one of which was to allow the illegal lead to stand as a legal lead. That is, declarer could accept the lead, which would mean that, to this trick, South would play second, West third, and dummy fourth.

Had declarer applied "Goldwater's Law" of allowing the lead to stand, it is conceivable—though not very likely—that he might have made his contract (if West took the ace and continued clubs). But South chose to prohibit the club lead, in view of his own weak club holding (South was not allowed to look at the dummy-to-be before playing out of his own hand). So the opening lead reverted to West, with a club lead being forbidden as long as West retained the lead.

West, not knowing which of the unbid suits to lead, elected to open the ace of hearts as a lesser-of-evils lead. He then continued with a heart, and East took five more heart tricks. A spade shift was then made, and West cashed the spade king and club ace, to hand declarer a four-trick set. In summary, all one can say is that if the bidding were a "crime," then the punishment fitted the crime.

"Goldwater's Law," incidentally, is a brainchild of Harry Goldwater, a National Director of the American Contract Bridge League. It says that when a defender leads out of turn, declarer should exercise the option of accepting the lead. The theory behind the acceptance is that if the guilty defender is not sufficiently on the ball to know who's lead it is, he is hardly likely to have found the most effective one in making his out-of-turn lead.

"I rambled on about everything under the sun," Halliday said. "Bones, cats, the weather, the postal strike — even the pools."

After an hour, the pooch, sad-eyed and thin, crawled into Halliday's truck.

E & N Key to High-Speed Network Of Island Transportation—McGeer

The E and N Railway right-of-way from Victoria to Courtenay is the key to establishment of a high-speed, integrated transportation network on Vancouver Island, Liberal Leader Pat McGeer told the legislature Monday.

McGeer said the north-south line owned by the Canadian Pacific Railway company should be expropriated if necessary by the provincial government if a use agreement can't be negotiated.

He suggested the line be extended to Pat Bay and Swartz Bay to link with mainland ferries and also to Gabriola Island by way of a bridge to tie in with a proposed one-hour ferry link to the mainland.

The line should also serve the downtown Victoria harbor area, he said.

"Today the E and N stands as a modern mobile monument to narrow-gauge thinking and negative salesmanship," McGeer said. "A Toonerville Trolley in the jet age.

"The facts of Island transportation are such that either a massive freeway must be built from Victoria to Courtenay or alternative means must be found to move people and goods. . . ."

McGeer said the rapid rail transit would be better for the Island because automobiles are the greatest destroyers of the environment, because they fail in speed and economy and because for southern Vancouver Island "there is a potential congestion problem that is genuinely frightening if you think in freeway terms.

"Using that valuable land for freeways is a mockery of man's intelligence," he added.

SINGLE SYSTEM

"With the existing E and N route as a basis we can evolve a high-speed rail service connecting all transportation facilities . . . you would then have a single system connecting bus, rail, air and ferry terminals."

McGeer said "we must not kid ourselves that the system is going to pay its way from the start. It won't. We must be prepared to subsidize the system, just as we subsidize the PGE, the CPR, the CNR and the B.C. Hydro systems today.

"The E and N years ago ceased to deserve the vast lands on the Island which they were given in exchange for providing rail passenger service on the Island," he said.

The integrated transit system would require a "master transportation complex" in the Cedar or Cassidy areas near Nanaimo," he said.

LINK URGED

It would consist of a bus terminal, rail terminal, freight distribution centre and an airport which would be capable of development into a major air terminal in the future.

This centre should tie into a lower mainland transit system which would bring Vancouver Island closer to the world-wide transportation network, he said.

The system would link Gabriola Island with Iona Island through one-hour ferry service, with the nautical mile distance between Vancouver Island and the mainland cut from 28 to 22 miles.

McGeer also called on the provincial government to cooperate with the federal and other local governments in building a third crossing to the North Shore.

KERR CALLS FOR BEAUTIFICATION

Action Urged on CPR 'Junkyard'

DUNCAN — Ald. G. A. Kerr Monday urged fellow aldermen to become involved in city beautification for centennial year and said quick action should be taken regarding the "outhouse" CPR calls a station.

Kerr said the "CPR junkyard" in the city centre is a disgrace and should be cleaned up.

Administrator Gordon Berry said he has written to CPR asking them to clean up their right-of-way but they haven't replied.

Several council members also voiced their displeasure with the CPR right-of-way while they were discussing recommendations from the city's planner regarding a new parking area along Canada Avenue land leased from the CPR.

Ald. Jay Powley said the city should spend no money in the area because the city's lease expires in two years.

The matter was referred to the city's advisory planning committee.

Unlawful Loitering Nets Fine

DUNCAN — Peter Harold Clugston, 31, of Duncan was fined $35 in provincial court Monday for unlawfully loitering at night.

A second charge of unlawfully prowling at night was dismissed by Judge Stan Wardill, who said, "I feel that the Crown (counsel Jack Davie) was overexuberant in laying two charges."

Clugston is the district superintendent of the department of rehabilitation and social improvement.

The judge said it was similar to charging a man with breaking and entering and then charging him with possession of stolen goods.

RCMP charged Clugston, of 359 Dogwood, Duncan, after he was found on the property of Denis and Elizabeth Bundy of 350 Dogwood Sept. 18.

Earlier in the case the accused testified he had lost the football he had been playing with earlier that evening.

Judge Wardill commented that "there were a number of opportunities during the evening that the accused was charged for him to have given the excuse that he was looking for his football. But on the basis of the evidence the accused did nothing in the early part of the evening to indicate that he had lost a football."

CAMPBELL REMARKS ANSWERED

Job Study Costs Checked

DUNCAN — City council Monday decided to look into the cost of a complete job analysis and evaluation study of the city's administration.

The decision was made in response to statements by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell who said last week in the legislature councils may face a taxpayers' revolt unless they halt spiralling expenses.

Campbell said a department study last year showed wide discrepancies in per capita administration costs for B.C. municipalities and more than 200 per cent increase in expenses during the 1960s.

Ald. G. A. Kerr, who presented the resolution, said the city should have "a proper job evaluation from top to bottom to get a clear picture for the future and we should act upon the advice of consultants."

"Municipal costs per capita can be distorted and it does not give a true picture," Mayor Jim Quaife said.

Currently the cost is $16.10 per capita, he said.

The cost could be cut to $8 or $9 per capita but in doing so "we could cut back so drastically we wouldn't be operating."

Quaife warned city aldermen that Campbell's statements are just "setting the trend and tone" for the municipal affairs department for the rest of the year.

"He has done this each year and municipalities can judge the amount of cooperation they will get. It is unfortunate this is the way it must be."

RCMP Need Duncan ID Man

DUNCAN — RCMP need an identification man stationed in Duncan, council was told Monday.

Ald. G. A. Kerr said Staff-Sgt. Gordon Sharp has stressed the need and explained that sometimes they have to wait a couple of days for an identification man to arrive after a crime has been committed. An officer is brought in from another area at no charge to the city.

Kerr said it was suggested the city and North Cowichan share the cost for the new man. The city's share would be $3,500, he said.

"It would also give us eight policemen in Duncan."

Council is also studying proposals to renovate and enlarge the existing police station rather than "get involved with a new public safety building elsewhere," Kerr said.

Flin Flon Bleeds From Strike

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP) — The belt of hardship is slowly being cinched around the economic waist of this northern community.

In a one-industry mining town this means only one thing: Strike.

Three weeks ago tradesmen belonging to six craft unions voted to walk out at the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co., anl this town of 13,000 people was facing its first strike in 37 years. The tradesmen number about 750 of the work force but their jobs are essential to the mines and smelters.

By the end of that week the company had shut down its operation, 2,800 workers were idle at three different sites and the town's economy braced for a slide.

Nestled in Manitoba's hinterland of the northwest and spilling across the Saskatchewan boundary, Flin Flon is one of Western Canada's oldest mining communities. A lucky prospector's bonfire melted snow and uncovered a copper ore outcropping in 1914, and by 1932 the town was incorporated. Two years later the town had its first labor strike and has not had one since.

Flin Flon, named after a fictional character in a long-lost novel, is a rambling collection of buildings and stores perched on barren rock. In many instances sewer and water pipes are boxed in from the cold and run over the rocks.

In the present strike, money is not a key factor. The tradesmen are demanding that they be permitted to bargain for their own trades association group. They have refused to follow the company demand that tradesmen accept the terms of a wage and work contract signed last fall by the United Steelworkers of America. The steelworkers represent 1,700 miners.

Chamber of Commerce President Fred Howard says:

"We pray it ends soon. This sort of thing has a snowball effect and there are already some layoffs from the smaller stores."

MONEY STILL AVAILABLE

He said there has been a drop in business at many stores. Clerks were being laid off and store managers and owners were starting to man the cash registers themselves.

A shortage of cash hasn't really been noticed yet because the strikers are still getting company pay cheques. The last one will come Feb. 11 and that will be for seven day's pay.

"Then, I'm afraid, things will start to get tight," said Mr. Howard.

With the fine closed, 1,700 miners are out and already more than 1,000 claims have been filed with the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Of the striking tradesmen, many, depending on their union, are already getting strike pay. The maximum, again depending upon the union concerned, is $40 a week.

But strike pay and unemployment insurance benefits are not going to match the $1.7 million monthly payroll that used to pour into the community.

Directly, the shutdown has closed the company's mines at Flin Flon and Snow Lake, 75 miles east of the town, as well as the Flin Flon metalurgical plant.

The strikers are all part of the building trades unions and are electricians, machinists, boilermakers, carpenters, bricklayers and painters.

TALKS STALLED

Negotiations between strikers and company have not resumed and Jim Goodison, representing the International Machinists Union, says the first move is up to the company.

The townspeople don't really care who makes the first move. They just want a fast settlement.

Mayor Ed Yack says that without one, "I think Jan. 26, 1971, will go down as the blackest day in the last 30 years of this town's history."

One of the main complaints of the trades group is that the pact, signed last year by the steelworkers, does not allow for the union to bargain in connection with pension plan.

The dispute between the trades association and the company went through a federal conciliation board. The board made no recommendations.

And that is where it stands now: A union-management sawoff with apparently no break in sight.

SHIP STOWAWAYS ESCAPE, ONE FOUND DEAD IN SEA

CHRISTCHURCH (Reuter) — One of three stowaways, believed to be young American servicemen, was found dead in the sea off the New Zealand coast today only hours after they were reported to have jumped overboard from a freighter.

The dead man, found by a fishing vessel, was wearing an orange life jacket. Two other lifejackets, one with a pair of boots tied to it, also were found in the area.

All three men were discovered hiding in the 19,000-ton freighter Port Caroline Jan. 27, the day the ship sailed from Panama.

It had originally been planned to return them to Panama, but seas were too rough for transfer to another ship and the Port Caroline's skipper decided to bring them on to New Zealand.

The three men were locked in a cabin aft. Crew members theorized that they tied their boots to life jackets, pushed them through a porthole and jumped into the sea after them.

A spokesman for the Blue Star Port Line, owner of the freighter, said in Wellington the men had given names to the captain, but he had no means of proving their identity.

An official of the U.S. Information Service in Wellington named them as Stephen Wayne Morris, 21; Thomas Sammon, 18, and Bobby Cothreen, 19.

Too Much Gas

NEW PLYMOUTH (Reuter) — Huge reserves of natural gas at Maui off the New Zealand coast will have to be burned to generate electricity because of insufficient demand for the gas as a fuel, Electricity Minister Percy Allen said.

MOON EXPLORERS BACK ON EARTH

ABOARD NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Apollo 14 explorers splashed down in the South Pacific today, ending a nine-day voyage of discovery that scientists say will vastly enrich man's knowledge of the moon.

Alan B. Shepard, Edgar D. Mitchell and Stuart A. Roosa hit the water after a blazing re-entry through the earth's atmosphere.

During the re-entry, which started when the command ship Kitty Hawk slammed into the atmosphere at 24,596 miles an hour, the temperature on the protective heat shield reached more than 5,000 degrees.

19,000 Drop In Jobs—NDP

By PETER McNELLY

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett said Monday the government's projected 25,000 new jobs before October, 1971, represents a 19,000 decrease from the number of jobs created in 1969.

Calling this a "dynamic decrease," Barrett proposed an immediate campaign to bring the head offices of manufacturing companies to the province.

Barrett led the debate on Friday's budget speech and told the legislature: "We get this hot air in the budget about how they're going to create jobs."

Then, referring to Premier Bennett's statement that 'J-O-B-S' is the keynote of the budget, Barrett said, "I've got another four-letter word that might describe it, B-U-L-L.

'WINDING DOWN'

"The economy is winding down, and you're bragging about it," he shouted across the floor.

The government is bragging, he said, after its own civil service hiring freeze forced some people to go on welfare last year. And he accused Industrial Development Minister Waldo Skillings of doing almost nothing to bring manufacturing industries to British Columbia.

He charged that although 1,977 new manufacturing industries began in B.C. during 1967-69—"about average"—only five manufacturing companies related to the petroleum industry and only 24 related to the primary metals industries were established since 1960.

Barrett claimed these 29 companies produced only 48 new jobs. He said he was going to meet today at 10 a.m. with an executive of the Toyota automobile company to discuss what kind of

We'd Tax Less, Says Grit Chief

By BRUCE YEMEN

Provincial government spending $100 million higher than Premier Bennett's $1.3 billion budget for 1971-72—but without Bennett's increase in taxes—was proposed in the legislature Monday by Liberal Leader Pat McGeer.

Among McGeer's $1.4 billion in spending proposals were programs to create jobs, protect the environment and to aid the elderly, the poor and Indians.

The Liberal leader said he could spend $100 million more than Bennett and still have a balanced budget with no increases in cigarette, gasoline or hotel taxes in the next fiscal year which begins April 1.

It was the third annual Liberal budget proposed by McGeer.

He said Bennett's practice of underestimating revenues and then siphoning off the bulk of the resulting surpluses into B.C. Hydro bonds is costing the province dearly.

By not following the advice contained in the Liberal budget last year, the premier had cost B.C. 46,000 jobs which would have reduced unemployment from 76,000 to 30,000 and cut 70,000 or 80,000 persons off welfare, McGeer said.

To emphasize his point, McGeer allocated $30 million less for the welfare department than Bennett did for the next fiscal year—$106 million instead of $136 million.

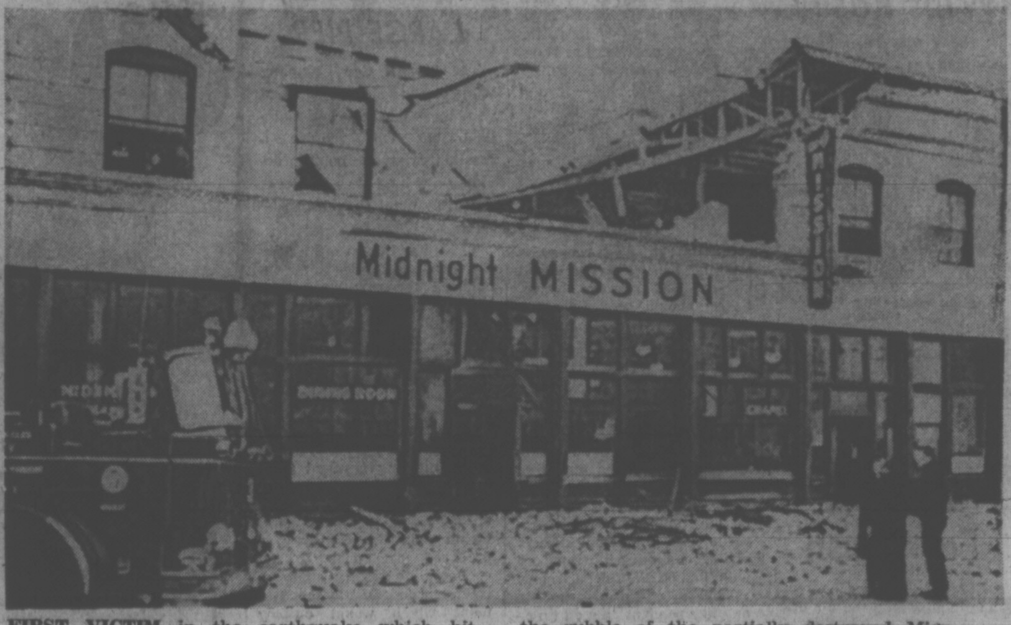
OVERPASS COLLAPSED when an earthquake this morning struck southern California. The overpass crosses the Golden State Freeway at the northern edge of the San Fernando Valley.



FIRST VICTIM in the earthquake which hit southern California this morning was found under the rubble of the partially destroyed Midnight Mission in Los Angeles. (AP Wirephoto.)

Hospital Collapses

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A powerful earthquake jolted southern California at dawn today, causing at least 11 deaths, scores of injuries and heavy damage to buildings, highways, bridges and other facilities.

Authorities said many persons were unaccounted for at a Veterans Administration Hospital facility in the San Fernando Valley where seven bodies were found.

Others were reported killed at Olive View Sanitarium a mile away.

The shock was centred in the rugged San Gabriel Mountains 26 miles northwest of Los Angeles. The San Fernando Valley is the closest major population centre. Hard hit, too, were the towns of Newhall and Saugus, just 10 miles from the centre.

The shock at 6:01 a.m. PST (9:01 a.m. EST), followed by numerous aftershocks, created cracks in the earthfill dam creating the Van Norman Lake reservoir, largest in the city system with 6.7 billion gallons of water. Residents were ordered evacuated from the area of the San Fernando Valley Lake after "some leakage" was reported.

60 PERSONS TRAPPED

At the Veterans Administration Hospital, in suburban Sylmar, firemen said a roof collapse trapped a reported 60 persons.

"The extent of injuries we don't know at this time," said Keith Kroll of the fire department. "The rest of the patients have been evacuated."

Reuters quoted a fireman as saying: "We have a catastrophe here. We have about 2½ acres of buildings that have collapsed."

City and county schools were closed so damage could be appraised. So were several downtown buildings. Lockheed Aircraft, hit recently by financial woes, closed two plants pending safety inspection of buildings and cleanup of broken glass.

SCENES OF CONFUSION

There were scenes of wild confusion as the quake, accompanied by an ominous rumbling sound and violent rolling that lasted nearly a minute, struck as dawn was breaking.

Power lines snapped and transformers showered sparks, plunging many areas into darkness. Phone service was knocked out in many areas. Gas mains snapped, with a rash of fires. Water mains parted. Power poles toppled.

Many large apartment buildings were evacuated with

HAND FROM THE DEEP RETURNS MESS

TORONTO (CP) — Two ice fishermen may never litter again when they tread out on Lake Simcoe.

The two received the shock of their lives last weekend as they sat drinking beer and dropping their empties down their ice hole.

A ghostly black hand suddenly emerged from the hole and deposited an empty beer bottle and some other litter on the floor of their fishing hut.

The hand belonged to one of four young Toronto divers who were swimming beneath the ice looking for a lost snowmobile when they came across a mass of litter on the bed of the lake.

"It was really bad," said Gordon Robinson, one of the divers who related the story Monday. "And I'm afraid it is all too common to find this mess below huts."

Quebec Ties Welfare Move To Formula

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's Political leaders went back behind closed doors today, apparently in agreement on the wording of a formula that would permit constitutional changes within Canada, but still unsure whether the formula itself would be accepted.

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa is asking that agreement on a formula be accompanied by acceptance of his proposals for increased jurisdiction over welfare services in his province.

Mr. Bourassa said before the opening of the second day of the conference that there has been substantial progress on working out a formula for amending Canada's constitution, which still must be done via Britain's Parliament, by Canada itself. But there was no definitive and complete agreement.

He was asked whether tentative agreement could be reached today and the formula discussed back in Quebec.

"No," replied Mr. Bourassa. "I would say that the government agreed—the Quebec government agreed—that very important progress has been made . . . but we want to study certain implications before committing ourselves."

In any case, the formula would have to be discussed in Parliament and various provincial legislatures before receiving the final seal of approval.

BUT NOT A QUIVER IN THE HOMES

Wild Scrawl on City Graph

The heavy shocks of the Los Angeles earthquake rocked the sensitive seismic equipment at the Victoria Geophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountan at 6:01 a.m., but nobody else in the city felt even a quiver.

Dr. William Milne, federal government seismologist, pulled out a graph and pointed to the wild scrawl where the seismograph had recorded the earthquake.

He estimated the shocks at about 6.5 Richter magnitude, healthy by anybody's standards, but said they could have been as low as 6.1, "depending on how your measure."

Milne said there was no danger that a major shock like the one felt in California could trigger other smaller earthquakes in distant areas.

"They just don't trigger other earthquakes," he said, "except maybe in an immediate proximity."

Vancouver Island lies in the extremely active Pacific Rim that records much of the world's earthquake and volcanic activity, said the seismologist.

"The past couple of weeks have been very active," he said, "but it's not cyclical. It comes and it goes but apparently not in cycles."

He said the Los Angeles quake was quite a strong one by seimological standrads.

"Anytime you get an earthquake that reads over six you can be sure you're going to get some damage," he said.

"There would probably be no danger to high-rises, for example, but a concrete block construction might collapse."

Some people, said Milne, are under the incorrect impression that the entire Pacific coastal region of North America is a single gigantic fault system.

There are some pretty big faults, like the San Andreas fault, but none of them come anywhere near the size attributed by contemporary folklore.

"The San Andreas fault system runs up through California," Milne said, "but it cuts sharlpy out to sea along an escarpment at Cape Mendocino in northern California."

He said the San Andreas fault line passes under San Francisco and was responsible for the earthquake that flattened the city in 1906.

A fault also runs under the northeastern sector of Los Angeles, he said.

"There is, however, no active fault running under Victoria."

"The nearest fault to the city, he said, is the Leech River fault. It

$25,000-a-Week Food Bill At Big Gas Plant Project

FOX CREEK, Alta. (CP) — Chicken cacciatore in the muskeg. Or perhaps you would prefer beef Wellington or veal scaloppine in wine sauce.

It's on the menu in the Kaybob south wilds of west-central Alberta, where Ralph M. Parsons Construction Co. of Canada Ltd. is building the largest gas processing plant in Canada for Chevron Standard Ltd.

"Food," a Parsons spokesman said, "is one of the most important things in any construction project," particularly when the nearest community is 35 miles away.

The 1,500 men working on the $97.8 million plant eat $25,000 worth of food a week. They get meals and lodging free, but a few still complain.

"I try to give them individual attention," said Sam Gabriel, catering superintendent for Fortier and Associates of Edmonton.

Sixty-seven people work in the kitchens, including four European-trained master chefs. One meal normally requires 1,500 pounds of beef, 3,000 eggs or 500 pounds of potatoes.

IN SHIFTS

"The big thing is to maintain variety," Gabriel said.

Menus are prepared two weeks in advance, following consultations with union stewards. Meals are served in two shifts in mobile-home units assembled into a panelled 750-seat dining area.

The service is buffet-style and in a typical two-week period offers such other delicacies as meat balls in creole sauce, Alaska black cod, sirloin steak, mushroom pizza and roast turkey.

"We'll even bake a birthday cake and sing 'Happy Birthday'," Gabriel said.

Fortier, a division of Canadian Dredge and Dock Ltd., also looks after the 317-unit dormitory "city" on the site 130 miles northwest of Edmonton. There are 40 men in each six units.

The dormitory is served by four first-aid men, with aircraft on 24-hour standby in Edson, 52 miles to the south, and Edmonton for any medical emergency.

The muskeg municipality has a 36-man volunteer fire department with a new four-outlet pumper, a large garbage truck, a crew of 100 maintenance people and uses enough power, natural gas, water and other facilities to serve 2,500 buildings.

There is a sewage plant lagoon, daily bus service to Edson, an 800-car parking lot with electric plug-ins for each space, and a full-time safety engineer.

There are facilities for skiing, hiking, snowmobiling, shuffleboard, poker, bridge, weightlifting, table tennis, color television and a 100-volume library.

"It's more than worth it," said Don Cameron of Calgary, a Parsons vice-president.

Work stoppages at most construction sites normally run 3½ to 5 per cent of manhours but at the Chevron location stoppages have averaged only 0.3 per cent.

Concorde Airliner Passes Stiff Tests

LONDON (WP) — A few weeks before major decisions must be taken on the Concorde supersonic airliner, highly successful tests have established that the Anglo-French plane will fulfill or surpass its promised performance. The tests began last April and have taken the aircraft to speeds of mach 2—twice the speed of sound—about 1,450 miles per hour.

What they have shown is that the Concorde can carry at least 25,000 lbs., or about 128 passengers and their luggage, between Paris and New York. This is the improved performance that was promised in 1964 and on the basis of which 16 airlines took options on 72 aircraft.

An official announcement is expected next month and the British Aircraft Corporation and the French National Aerospace Company will then invite customers to sign firm contracts.

Subject to government approval, the price is likely to be about $26 million per aircraft, more than three times the price of a subsonic Boeing 707.

The test results are bound to figure prominently in talks between Frederick Corfield, Britain's ministry of aviation supply, and his French counterpart March 15.

The talks are supposed to decide whether orders should be given for the Concorde to be put into production, a decision that in turn is dependent on the willingness of airlines to buy the plane.

In fact, it will be too early to know airline reactions by the time of the meeting, but the ministers could well agree on an interim step: authority to manufacture another four production aircraft (six have already been authorized), and permission to order "long-dated" production materials for another 10.

A key position is held by the British Overseas Airways Corporation, which has been receiving the results of each test flight. If BOAC or Air France place firm orders, other airlines are confidently expected to follow suit. But if the British airline rejects the Concorde, the others can cancel their options without any financial penalty.

'Unending Sparring Match'

Unions Out-Jockey Councils

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

Civil service unions seeking new contracts with Greater Victoria municipalities are far better organized than the local governments, Victoria council was warned Monday.

City manager Bill Hooson told aldermen following a special council meeting that "perhaps we have been a little too casual" in the past in negotiating with the unions.

Hooson gave aldermen a half-hour briefing on the procedures that have developed over a number of years, describing them as a "sparring match that never finishes."

After working out a new contract, "the next year, you are right back at it."

●

But Hooson said he thinks the actual contract proposals on both sides should be kept confidential to prevent "polarization" and hardening of arguments.

"We try to reach a settlement each year — we don't want strikes."

Aldermen later discussed actual contract details in a closed meeting with Hooson and personnel director Terry Fitzpatrick.

Hooson said the unions have a "more refined" system of bargaining than their employers. For one thing, they "stand united" from one municipality to the next, whereas each municipality bargains on its own.

The unions also use a "divide and conquer" technique, taking advantage of the poor organization of the local governments.

"Leapfrogging" of contract victories is used from one municipality to the next. If a good settlement is reached in one area, it is usually attempted in the next, with the argument that its prior use gives it validity.

●

This technique could be important to larger governments to watch out for. An unrealistically high settlement in a very small municipality may be accepted to preserve good personal relations and because it may not amount to much money in absolute terms.

But if the scale is transferred to a larger municipality, the dollar amount could be enormous.

"Let's make no mistake," Hooson said. "A settlement in any one of those areas will affect all others."

The unions also employ "statistical dazzlement" in their arguments and "their's are usually better" than the city's.

The big advantage of the unions is their use of one bargaining agent, Hooson said. In fact, one agent negotiates 87 contracts.

●

They use an over-all strategy which they can "modify quickly — we are not as quick."

"I don't think we will become as effective (as the unions) until we have a single unit for the whole area."

Of the several unions employed by the city, the Canadian Union of Public Employees is the largest. The 1970 payroll in Victoria was about $7 million, or almost a third of the budget.

Air Firm Protests Licence Denial

Charges of monopoly and licence violation flew in Victoria charter airplane circles today in the wake of rejection by Ottawa of an application to operate a second charter service here.

The Canadian Transport Commission in Ottawa this morning rejected a request for a charter and recreational flying licence submitted by Flight Centre Victoria.

The commission said it was not convinced the demand could not be handled by the existing licensee, Victoria Flying Services Ltd.

The application by Flight Centre was opposed, the commission said, by Victoria Flying Services, the Victoria Flying Club and Air West Airlines.

'DISSERVICE'

Flight Centre president Bill Blaauw immediately charged Victoria was being "done a disservice" by the Ottawa decision.

"Ours is the only airport in British Columbia with only one commercial firm, while there are four or five operating out of hole-in-the-wall facilities like Kamloops," said Blaauw, 31.

Flight Centre operates eight aircraft, ranging from two-seaters to six-seaters, and has an engine overhaul plant at the airport.

Blaauw claimed Victoria Flying Club had withdrawn its original objection to the application, and that Air West had objected after the closing date, leaving only one real opponent—the licensee, Victoria Flying Services.

VFS manager Al Collins said his fim, in operation here since 1959, is on solid ground in claiming there is not enough business here to support a second charter service.

"We know how many aircraft are needed here, and we've got them," Collins said.

The company operates 13 aircraft, including a new Cessna float plane delivered Monday.

UNDER APPEAL

On the question of monopoly, Collins said there already was effective competition for the Island's charter business because Air West was operating charter flights out of Victoria — in violation of charter laws.

Air West had applied to Ottawa a year ago for a charter licence and had been denied. The decision now is under appeal.

"Despite the commission's denial of their application, Air West continues to operate," Collins said. "They are not licensed. They are not complying with the law."

Air West president Norm Gold said in Vancouver he is convinced there is enough business to warrant a second charter service in Victoria.

"We were convinced of this need a year ago, when we applied for a licence," Gold said. "Then along came Flight Centre with their application; presumably after we had applied they began to think it was a good idea.

"Victoria is the only airport of this size that I know of that only has one charter service, but the second service should be supplied by us," Gold said.

Blaauw said Flight Centre's application would be appealed, as was Air West's. He will consult with his lawyers before filing the appeal.

Refinery Closing May Lead To Oil Pollution Problem

The manager of Star Oil Refining Co. Ltd. said Monday he expects the company to close "because there's not enough oil in the area to keep us operating and making money."

And he predicted a serious pollution problem with the disposal of 10,000 gallons of used oil a month.

Allan Vanderkerkhove said he intends "shutting down in a few months." He said he has informed the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health, Capital Regional District and Pollution Control Board.

Star Oil picks up used oil at no charge from service stations and other places and recycles it into re refined non-detergent oil which is then sold locally.

Vanderkerkhove expressed the fear that if there is nowhere to dispose of used oil, it will go down the sewers and pollute beaches and the sea.

ADMITS TO SMELL

He had been considering closure for a year. He said his company can buy re-refined oil in the United States and have it delivered here cheaper than recycling local used oil.

Asked about residents' complaints of a smell from the refinery, at 1651 Old Island Highway, he said "you just can't recycle oil and make it smell like roses. Sure there's a smell when you go by the refinery itself. I'll admit there's a refinery smell around the refinery."

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer, said there were some complaints several years ago and the situation was corrected then.

"An operation like that always will result in some fumes," he said.

Asked who had responsibility, he said "we'd like some directive from someone." He suggested the complainant write to the Pollution Control Branch with a copy to him.

Ceremony to Launch Hospital Project

A brief sod-turning ceremony Wednesday at 2 p.m. will launch construction of a 300-bed addition to Gorge Road Hospital.

On hand will be Dr. Scott Wallace, Oak Bay MLA, and the man who proposed that the original project of 150 beds be doubled after it was found that a 150-bed unit planned for Royal Jubilee Hospital could not be built within provincial government cost limits.

Mrs. Irene Warren, chairman of the hospital's board, will turn the first sod. Among dignitaries on hand will be Donald Cox, deputy minister of hospital insurance, Hugh Curtis, chairman of the Capital regional board and Jim Cumming, who chairs the regional hospital board's meetings.

The Gorge project, to cost almost $4 million, will be ready for occupancy about the middle of next year. It will serve chronic care patients, mostly elderly people who are bed-ridden and require round-the-clock nursing.

Rites Wednesday For City Doctor

Funeral service for Dr. David Main Baillie, well-known Victoria physician, will be held in St. George's Church at Cadboro Bay at 2 p.m., Wednesday, not at St. John's Church as reported in Tuesday's Times.

Archbishop Harold Sexton, retired, will officiate.

Ask The Times

Q. What are the regulations regarding the use of rifles in the Colwood-Langford area?—R.J.D.

A. Provincial legislation forbids shooting of any kind in this area, whether on private property or not. RCMP officials also report that the Highlands district also has restrictions, only allowing the firing of shotguns that use SSG (ball) shot.

Family Units Losing Grip

The single-family house remains king in Saanich, but his crown is fading.

Statistics issued by the municipal planning department this week show the number of single-family houses built has declined from a peak of 533 in 1963 to 199 last year.

Over the eight-year period, 3,201 houses were built compared with 292 duplexes, 1,020 apartments and 261 units of senior citizen housing.

This gave houses 67.1 per cent of the total, followed by apartments at 21.3 per cent, duplexes at 6.1 per cent and senior citizens' housing at 5.5 per cent.

Municipal planner Tom Loney described the decline of the single-family house as "substantial." He called the growth in senior citizens' housing "remarkable."

The cost of single-family and duplex houses over this period has almost doubled while apartments have shown a much lower increase.

The average value of a house in 1963 was $13,836 and a one unit of a duplex, $10,272. An apartment unit was valued at $8,034.

By 1970, the house had increased to $23,039, one unit of a duplex to $18,866 and an apartment unit to $10,552.

FEDERAL AWARD of $5,000 was presented today to Richard Sewell of the Defence Research Estalishment Pacific in honor of his contribution to the fight against pollution. Sewell is the inventor of the "slick-licker" that played a major role in the cleanup of oil from the ill-fated tanker Arrow at Chedabucto Bay in Nova Scotia. The presentation was made here by Dr. Leon L'Heureux, chairman of the Defence Research Board, Ottawa.

Bus Fare Increase Discussed by Hydro

B.C. Hydro management discussed the possibility of a hike in bus fares to offset increasing deficits during a regular Monday morning meeting, chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum said today.

"Any final decision will have to come from the board of directors," Shrum said.

The board will meet later this month.

He said B.C. Hydro faces a further $3.2 million deficit beause of "this settlement" with the Amalgamated Transit Union which ended a 33-day strike Saturday.

★

The 1,800 transit division workers settled for a basic 14 per cent increase with certain benefits and bonuses bringing the total to 18.7 per cent over 27 months.

The settlement will boost their pay from $3.75 an hour to $4.35.

Shrum said B.C. Hydro management will "have to examine" all alternatives for reducing the deficit, which he said will be over and above a predicted $4.4 million deficit this year.

Wallace To Seek Strike End

Dr. Scott Wallace (SC—Oak Bay) served notice this morning he will call for action to settle the protracted strike at Sandringham Hospital when he addresses the legislature tonight.

Wallace, scheduled to speak first this evening at a likely 8 p.m. sitting, said he wants the "good offices" of the government used to help settle the strike.

"The point I am making is that I can't see why the government gives bargaining rights to a group such as the Sandringham workers and then there is no obligation on the part of the employer to negotiate in good faith or to bargain at all," said Wallace in an interview.

Total Moon Eclipse Tonight

If the sky clears around midnight tonight, Victorians will see a total eclipse of the moon—when the moon enters the earth's penumbra.

Victoria Geophysical Observatory astronomers said the beginning of the total eclipse will take place at 11:03 p.m. and end at 12:26 a.m.

The moon will leave the umbra, the deeper shadow of the earth, at 1:37 a.m.

The weather office said the chance of the sky clearing in time for the eclipse is slim.

Arthur Mayse . . .

AS CONVINCED ISLANDERS, we cross to Vancouver no oftener than need be. After all, having broken away from mainland hurry-scurry why extend ourselves to return? But once in a while, Big Smoky on Burrard bags some attraction which Victoria is denied, and that we'd like to catch.

It happened so last weekend. A company of Noh actors on tour was to present Japanese classical theatre in a one-night stand at Vancouver's Queen Elizabeth. This would be the first such performance in North America.

We read what we could find on an art-form ancient when American Commodore Perry opened the forbidden islands to western influence. Then on Friday, we put our car on the Queen of Saanich, and watched these familiar shores dwindle down her wake.

It's a short crossing, and one for which we have adopted a standard drill.

First, lunch, which takes us nicely to the Active Pass approaches.

Next through the pass, hoping that no over-impetuous freighter will come bucketing around the dogleg in the wrong traffic lane. Then the open Gulf crossing, with the two coal-mountains of Roberts Bank looming larger until the amplified voice of Miss Dogwood shoos us down to the car deck.

So to Vancouver, where it sprawls with its prickling concrete towers under the cold gaze of mountains it doesn't deserve. With time to spare, we put in at the Nitobe gardens on the University of British Columbia fringe.

The gardens weren't officially open, but the gates were ajar, and a party of visiting Japanese was being shepherded along snow-bordered paths by a guide with a voice-horn.

These were the Noh players — a name often spelled without the "h." When we next saw them, they would be unfolding their stylized plays in the manner decreed by one of the world's most rigid theatrical conventions.

We arrived at the Queen Elizabeth in time to watch it fill. The set, which would remain unchanged from beginning to end, occupied only a portion of the stage. It too served the strict Noh tradition.

A Japanese pine, gnarled and green-tufted, was painted on its end wall. The single side wall carried a painting of bamboos. A bridge or gangway along which the actors would come and go led to a bare platform.

As Japanese theatre requires, we were to be given a set-piece comedy (Kyogen) followed by a Noh play, sombre and ghost-ridden, that the samurai rulers of fifteenth-century Japan once found to their taste.

First came the comedy. It was titled Boshibari, which translates as Tied to a Stick. A master sought to deal with two servants who were thieving his wine by tying their hands. They outwitted him, got drunk, and were driven from his house.

The acting was stylized and polished to the last degree, the story plain even without the help of our program notes.

It set us up for our adventure into Noh, from which we emerged with mixed feelings.

The play, centuries old, was Funa-Benkei, or Benkei in the Boat. A young nobleman in flight from his ill-intentioned brother takes ship with his loyal retainers after refusing his sweetheart's plea to accompany him. (The "girl" is a masked man — no women in Noh.) In a storm, the ghost of a slain enemy leader threatens him. Benkei, a warrior priest, confronts the ghost with Budhist incantations and drives it away.

In color and textile effect, the stiff, archaic costumes were fantastic. The pace, by Western standards, was slow to the point of tedium — so leisured, in fact, that the sudden stamping of a foot or pointing of a fan was startling as a thunderclap.

All this to dialogue moaned rather than spoken, and punctuated by an occasional drum-stroke, or notes evoked from a primitive flute.

Yet we soon became aware that a strong magic was being worked upon us. Even before the horned and wild-haired ghost intruded upon the scene, the play had gathered power.

It was good theater by gifted actors, and we came away from it feeling that we had been subjected to no ordinary experience.

I hope Victoria will one day be visited by a Noh company. But when that time comes, be warned. This is not drama as we know it, and you may sense much more in its stately progression than you are likely to understand.

Blueberry Hill, Academy Site Land Swap?

Architect Helen Johnson Murphy and her husband, Maurice, whose plan to build town houses on Blueberry Hill was turned down by Oak Bay council Oct. 5, met council at an in-camera meeting Monday night.

A reliabel source said today the Murphys, accompanied by their lawyer, indicated they would swap the 6.3 acres they have optioned on Island Road (Blueberry Hill) for the 9.3-acre Victoria Riding Academy site.

In October Mayor Frances Elford said the Blueberry Hill property had a market value of $75,000. Council has set a value of $1.3 million on the academy land.

Mayor Elford said today the Murphys had made an "implied exchange" of the two properties.

She also said there had been an implication that if the council did not consider the couple's proposal favorably they would develop the Blueberry Hill property for single-family dwelling as soon as sewer permits were available.

The mayor said she had been in contact with every member of council today. All agreed that it was "in the best interests of the community that it (details of the meeting) should be disclosed."

The Murphys were not available for comment but had talked to the Times earlier.

He said then that he had "considerable financial backing" and he felt the residents near Island Road would be interested in having the real estate swap so that Blueberry Hill could become a park.

Ald. Shirley Dowell said today the Murphys had "kept bugging me and phoning me" and had threatened to "blow this thing up in the press."

OFF HOOK

She said the council had agreed to the secret meeting "in order to get me off the hook."

The mayor said that at Monday's meeting the couple had outlined some "very nebulous" plans for the development of the academy site.

'STEP UP FOOD STORE INSPECTION'

DUNCAN — Ald. Hamish Mutter told council Monday inspection of food stores in Duncan should be stepped up.

If two in particular are not cleaned up by next council meeting he will name them, he said.

"A number of stores in Duncan are very clean but some should be improved," Mutter said. "The city has a responsibility to see regulations are enforced."

Mutter said areas of concern should either be referred to the provincial department of health or one of the many city inspectors.

46% BELIEVE U.S. IN LAOS

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC reported Monday that a nationwide poll indicated 46 per cent of more than 1,000 persons questioned believe there are United States ground troops in Laos, despite denials by Washington.

The network newscast said it obtained that result and others from a poll conducted by Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, N.J., during the weekend. NBC said 1,031 persons over 18 years of age were questioned.

The network reported 14 per cent of those polled believed the current invasion of Laos by South Vietnamese troops would help reduce American involvement in the Indochina war.

Alderman Urges Hiring

DUNCAN — Ald. Martin Lukaitis suggested the city hire three university students during the summer to help alleviate the unemployment situation.

He recommended hiring of two male students to work on the outside crew and one girl for the city office.

Ald. G. A. Kerr suggested that two "meterettes" be hired for the summer while the present commissioners take their holidays.

If employees are needed the suggestion is quite in order, Ald. Hamish Mutter said, "but to make work is something different."

The recommendation was referred to the finance committee.

MOON EXPLORERS BACK ON EARTH

ABOARD NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Apollo 14 explorers splashed down in the South Pacific today, ending a nine-day voyage of discovery that scientists say will vastly enrich man's knowledge of the moon.

Alan B. Shepard, Edgar D. Mitchell and Stuart A. Roosa hit the water after a blazing re-entry through the earth's atmosphere.

During the re-entry, which started when the command ship Kitty Hawk slammed into the atmosphere at 24,596 miles an hour, the temperature on the protective heat shield reached more than 5,000 degrees.

19,000 Drop In Jobs—NDP

By PETER McNELLY

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett said Monday the government's projected 25,000 new jobs before October, 1971, represents a 19,000 decrease from the number of jobs created in 1969.

Calling this a "dynamic decrease," Barrett proposed an immediate campaign to bring the head offices of manufacturing companies to the province.

Barrett led the debate on Friday's budget speech and told the legislature: "We get this hot air in the budget about how they're going to create jobs."

Then, referring to Premier Bennett's statement that 'J-O-B-S' is the keynote of the budget, Barrett said, "I've got another four-letter word that might describe it, B-U-L-L.

'WINDING DOWN'

"The economy is winding down, and you're bragging about it," he shouted across the floor.

The government is bragging, he said, after its own civil service hiring freeze forced some people to go on welfare last year. And he accused Industrial Development Minister Waldo Skillings of doing almost nothing to bring manufacturing industries to British Columbia.

He charged that although 1,977 new manufacturing industries began in B.C. during 1967-69—"about average"—only five manufacturing companies related to the petroleum industry and only 24 related to the primary metals industries were established since 1960.

Barrett claimed these 29 companies produced only 48 new jobs. He said he was going to meet today at 10 a.m. with an executive of the Toyota automobile company to discuss what kind of

We'd Tax Less, Says Grit Chief

By BRUCE YEMEN

Provincial government spending $100 million higher than Premier Bennett's $1.3 billion budget for 1971-72—but without Bennett's increase in taxes—was proposed in the legislature Monday by Liberal Leader Pat McGeer.

Among McGeer's $1.4 billion in spending proposals were programs to create jobs, protect the environment and to aid the elderly, the poor and Indians.

The Liberal leader said he could spend $100 million more than Bennett and still have a balanced budget with no increases in cigarette, gasoline or hotel taxes in the next fiscal year which begins April 1.

It was the third annual Liberal budget proposed by McGeer.

He said Bennett's practice of underestimating revenues and then siphoning off the bulk of the resulting surpluses into B.C. Hydro bonds is costing the province dearly.

By not following the advice contained in the Liberal budget last year, the premier had cost B.C. 46,000 jobs which would have reduced unemployment from 76,000 to 30,000 and cut 70,000 or 80,000 persons off welfare, McGeer said.

To emphasize his point, McGeer allocated $30 million less for the welfare department than Bennett did for the next fiscal year—$106 million instead of $136 million.

OVERPASS COLLAPSED when an earthquake this morning struck southern California. The overpass crosses the Golden State Freeway at the northern edge of the San Fernando Valley.

Hospital Collapses

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A powerful earthquake jolted southern California at dawn today, causing at least 12 deaths, scores of injuries and heavy damage to buildings, highways, bridges and other facilities.

Authorities said many persons were unaccounted for at a Veterans Administration Hospital facility in the San Fernando Valley where seven bodies were found.

Others were reported killed at Olive View Sanitarium a mile away.

The shock was centred in the rugged San Gabriel Mountains 26 miles northwest of Los Angeles. The San Fernando Valley is the closest major population centre. Hard hit, too, were the towns of Newhall and Saugus, just 10 miles from the centre.

The shock at 6:01 a.m. PST (9:01 a.m. EST), followed by numerous aftershocks, created cracks in the earth-fill dam creating the Van Norman Lake reservoir, largest in the city system with 6.7 billion gallons of water. Residents were ordered evacuated from the area of the San Fernando Valley Lake after "some leakage" was reported.

60 PERSONS TRAPPED

At the Veterans Administration Hospital, in suburban Sylmar, firemen said a roof collapse trapped a reported 60 persons.

"The extent of injuries we don't know at this time," said Keith Kroll of the fire department. "The rest of the patients have been evacuated."

Reuters quoted a fireman as saying: "We have a catastrophe here. We have about 2½ acres of buildings that have collapsed."

City and county schools were closed so damage could be appraised. So were several downtown buildings. Lockheed Aircraft, hit recently by financial woes, closed two plants pending safety inspection of buildings and cleanup of broken glass.

SCENES OF CONFUSION

There were scenes of wild confusion as the quake, accompanied by an ominous rumbling sound and violent rolling that lasted nearly a minute, struck as dawn was breaking.

Power lines snapped and transformers showered sparks, plunging many areas into darkness. Phone service was knocked out in many areas. Gas mains snapped, with a rash of fires. Water mains parted. Power poles toppled.

Many large apartment buildings were evacuated with

Quebec Ties Welfare Move To Formula

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's political leaders went back behind closed doors today, apparently in agreement on the wording of a formula that would permit constitutional changes within Canada, but still unsure whether the formula itself would be accepted.

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa is asking that agreement on a formula be accompanied by acceptance of his proposals for increased jurisdiction over welfare services in his province.

Mr. Bourassa said before the opening of the second day of the conference that there has been substantial progress on working out a formula for amending Canada's constitution, which still must be done via Britain's Parliament, by Canada itself. But there was no definitive and complete agreement.

He was asked whether tentative agreement could be reached today and the formula discussed back in Quebec.

"No," replied Mr. Bourassa. "I would say that the government agreed—the Quebec government agreed—that very important progress has been made . . . but we want to study certain implications before committing ourselves."

In any case, the formula would have to be discussed in Parliament and various provincial legislatures before receiving the final seal of approval.

CNTU Occupied

MONTREAL (CP) — A crowd of about 100 former employees of the G. Lapalme Inc., mail pickup service marched into and occupied the downtown offices of the Confederation of National Trade Unions today.

BUT NOT A QUIVER IN THE HOMES

Wild Scrawl on City Graph

By STEVE HUME

The heavy shocks of the Los Angeles earthquake rocked the sensitive seismic equipment at the Victoria Geophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountan at 6:01 a.m., but nobody else in the city felt even a quiver.

Dr. William Milne, federal government seismologist, pulled out a graph and pointed to the wild scrawl where the seismograph had recorded the earthquake.

He estimated the shocks at about 6.5 Richter magnitude, healthy by anybody's standards, but said they could have been as low as 6.1, "depending on how your measure."

Milne said there was no danger that a major shock like the one felt in California could trigger other smaller earthquakes in distant areas.

"They just don't trigger other earthquakes," he said, "except maybe in an immediate proximity."

Vancouver Island lies in the extremely active Pacific Rim that records much of the world's earthquake and volcanic activity, said the seismologist.

"The past couple of weeks have been very active," he said, "but it's not cyclical. It comes and it goes but apparently not in cycles."

He said the Los Angeles quake was quite a strong one by seimological standrads.

"Anytime you get an earthquake that reads over six you can be sure you're going to get some damage," he said.

"There would probably be no danger to high-rises, for example, but a concrete block construction might collapse."

Some people, said Milne, are under the incorrect impression that the entire Pacific coastal region of North America is a single gigantic fault system.

There are some pretty big faults, like the San Andreas fault, but none of them come anywhere near the size attributed by contemporary folklore.

"The San Andreas fault system runs up through California," Milne said, "but it cuts sharply out to sea along an escarpment at Cape Mendocino in northern California."

He said the San Andreas fault line passes under San Francisco and was responsible for the earthquake that flattened the city in 1906.

A fault also runs under the northeastern sector of Los Angeles, he said.

"There is, however, no active fault running under Victoria."

"The nearest fault to the city, he said, is the Leech River fault. It
